FORD SAILS IGNORING THREATS

REFUSES TO HALT SHIP

By HELEN BULLITT LOWRY.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

HOBOKEN, N. J., Dec. 4.—The peace ship, Oscar II., carrying Henry Ford and his expedition of pacificists, sailed for Christiania at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon. Before he boarded the liner Mr. Ford delivered a message to the American people in which he said that he expected great good to come of the mission.

"I am saturated with the firm belief that great good will come from this mission," he said emphatically.

"Delegates to the peace conference have indicated that there exists in them the same spirit that reproaches this wasteful war and the terrible and unnecessary killing that I have.

"There is a great sentiment behind the project, but there is also indication that the powers want the thing stopped, so that they may go on with the work of construction. That is the desire of the masses, excepting those that are turning out junk, battleships and other useless but costly implements.

"Little harm can come of this venture and great good may result. It will keep alive the thought that peace is possible.

"I know little of the plans of the peace conference, but I do know that an effort can be made for an honorable peace. My heart is in the work, and for that reason I have stood behind the trip to help these people reach a common meeting place to discuss the possibilities of peace.

"GREAT MAJORITY WITH US."

"At first I was much afraid that international complications would result from the trip. That was up to a very short while ago.

"Ridicule was brought in that might have been saved for Billy Sunday. Alton B. Parker, Chancellor Day and the other comedians who have expressed themselves against the plan with the knowledge that they would appear prominently in the papers.

"In spite of their interviews, the greater part of the world wants peace. The great majority are with us. There is a certain gang of deathpeddlers that would like to see this thing go to smash, but I believe that they are going to suffer a very great disappointment."

When attention was called to the fact that he had failed to mention

Sharp Advance in Wheat Price in Chicago Pit

By the International News Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Sensational advances were recorded in the wheat market, when prices advanced sharply on the wildest trading. December closed at 116⅝, an advance of 5¼ cents over last night's close, and May at 118⅛, an advance of 2 cents.

Corn closed ⅝ cents higher, while oats were ⅛ cent lower to ⅜ cent higher. Provisions were unchanged for the December options, while the distant months were 10 to 20 cents up.

A "squeeze" in December here was the cause of the rapid rise in the December wheat option. Several large local traders are reported, on excellent authority, to be short 15,000,000 bushels of December, and there are only 3,000,000 bushels here for delivery. Their efforts to cover their short contracts caused December to advance 5¼ cents in the last 15 minutes of today's trading.

Vote Buying in New Bedford

New Bedford has been in the public eye from time to time when charges of vote-buying have been made. In the heat of political battle they are now having one of the most spirited times that ever disturbed the "Whaling City." The "Pickle Club," joy rides and the Mayor's auto, the "Perennial" Ashley and his rival, Mr. Hathaway, figure in the story

ARREST ON 'ELSIE'S' STORY

A third arrest was made early today in the West Boston bridge robbery, in which John A. McKane of Haverhill street, Lawrence, was attacked, beaten unconscious and robbed of $1,500 while in company with a girl known as "Elsie."

Samuel Mercurio, twenty-three, of No. 83 Green street, West End, was arrested on a charge of having a part in the robbery.

His arrest resulted from a confession made to the police by Evelyn M. Richardson of No. 24 Harvard street, Charlestown, who admitted she was the "Elsie" in the case. She was arrested.

The girl's confession had led to the arrest earlier of Charles Swirlif, alias Schrafft, of No. 24 Harvard street, Charlestown. He is twenty-four years old and a native of the island of Malta. Mercurio had a full outfit of new clothes and $280 in new bills.

Then came the third arrest, that of Mercurio. Other arrests are expected.

THREE ARRAIGNED.

The girl and the two men were arraigned in the Cambridge District Court today on charges of robbing McKane of $1,500. All three, according to Chief Inspector Patrick J. Hurley of Cambridge, admitted having had part in the case. But in court all pleaded not guilty and were held in $2,500 apiece for continued hearing on December 14.

"Elsie," as McKane said he heard the girl called, or "Evelyn," as she says is her real name, made a striking appearance in court. She is about twenty-five years old. She wore a black velvet suit, black picture hat and tan shoes.

GIRL CONFESSES.

The prisoners were handed over to the Cambridge police because the attack upon and robbery of McKane took place on the Cambridge half of the West Boston bridge, while McKane was walking with the girl.

The girl and Swrlisa had been taken over to Cambridge headquarters before Mercurio was arrested. Chief Inspector Hurley, who grilled the pair, said today that the girl admitted being in the case, but denied having received any of the McKane money.

Swrlisa, said Hurley, declared he had no part in the actual assault and received none of the money.

When Mercurio was brought over to Cambridge at 4 a. m., he was grilled in turn. Hurley says that Mercurio admitted being in the robbery and getting $350. The man had new clothes throughout. In his room on

Germans Urged by Seiberlich to Aid Curley

Frank Seiberlich of Jamaica Plain, an election commissioner, has issued a circular letter to the German voters of Boston, printed in German, urging them to support Mayor Curley as against James J. Storrow.

Mr. Seiberlich said that the appeal was made on the ground that Mr. Storrow, as head of the banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Co., was helping to finance the allies in the war.

Fitzgerald Sizes Up Council Contest

Former Mayor Fitzgerald, in an editorial in the current issue of the Republic, declares the "reading of the Good Government candidates out of the Democratic party" to be a mistake. The editorial says:

"Mayor Curley strikes from the shoulder, and if his ticket is to be beaten it must be by the adoption of much better tactics than his opponents have adopted up to date. The meeting last Sunday, when Attridge, Storrow, Collins and Kenny were read out of the Democratic party, was a blunder, and the Mayor lost ground. He has regained some of the lost ground the past few days by the boldness of his attacks, though the statement of the Good Government members in Friday's papers brought them to the front again."

Dismiss Appeal on Brigham Trustees

Judge Pierce has dismissed the appeal of the city of Boston from the action of Judge George of the Probate Court in appointing as trustees under the will of Robert B. Brigham, founder of the Robert B. Brigham Hospital, Hiram W. Burton of Brookline, Frank R. Shirmer of Newton and Robert E. Townsend of Boston. Attorney General Attwill told Judge Pierce he was satisfied with these men as trustees.

EVERETT IN TITLE GAME

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Mich., Dec. 4.—Everett High of Boston and Central High of Detroit clashed on the gridiron this afternoon in the game that carried with victory the national interscholastic football championship.

Ideal weather conditions prevailed and the high ball park stands began to fill early with the throng that promised to exceed that of all previous records for Detroit football games.

The Navin field turf was hard, but all the snow of the week had cleared away and the bright sunshine had taken some of the frost out of the ground.

Central won its right to the intersectional game for the championship by playing out a schedule that ranked in superiority to anything Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and Ohio had to offer.

Everett's right to the intersectional championship, which it has won for two years, is based on the fact that Everett and Waltham together cleaned up the class of New England and then Everett secured a decision over Waltham.

One of the unusual features of the game was the introduction of cabaret between the halves. This is an innovation in football, and scored a great hit with the fans.

Everett was the first to take the field, appearing at ten minutes to 2. After ten minutes of signal practice and kicking the Easterners returned to the clubhouse.

At nine minutes after 2 Central appeared and ran through a short signal practice, after which they had their pictures taken.

FIRST PERIOD.

Captain Culver of Detroit won the toss and chose to defend the south goal. This put the sun in Everett's eyes and compelled them to play slightly uphill.

Captain Johnson of Everett kicked off and recovered the ball on Central's 30-yard line, when the kickoff was fumbled. Marshall, Green and Bradley all failed to gain. Bray hurt his ankle. E. Johnson and Bray left the game, Bradley replacing Bray at half and Davidson replacing Johnson at right guard.

A forward pass failed and the ball was given to the 20-yard line. Loving made first down on two end runs. Brashaert made five through the line. Loving fumbled and E. Johnson recovered on Central's 25-yard line.

CENTRAL HOLDS FOR DOWNS.

Green made three through centre. Bradley added two more. Earl Johnson made first down on Central's 15-yard line by an end run.

Marshall failed to gain. Green made five yards through tackle. Marshall again failed. Central held and BEVERLY, Dec. 4.—Beverly Athletic Field had fully 10,000 people flanked on both sides and the ends at 2 o'clock when the Beverly team took the field. They ran through signals, and a few minutes later De Paul trotted on.

The Chicago lads ran through signals with considerable speed, and while the officials conferred they practiced long passes. De Paul's punter got off fifty-yard punts with regularity.

Herron, Beverly's quarterback, soon equalled the work of the De Paul kicker. Pond, De Paul's left end and alternate fullback, threw many long passes.

Captain Toomey was presented with a large silver cup before the game started by Lewis Hovey of the Haverhill Record. The cup is emblematic of the Essex County championship.

The game started at 2:15 after it had been decided that fifteen-minute periods be played. Beverly won the toss and chose to receive the kick at the north goal.

There was a halt while the ball was measured, and then after it had been found to be of legal size the game was started.

FIRST PERIOD.

Pond kicked off outside at Beverly's 10-yard line, and another kick was ordered. The second kick went to Birmingham on the 25-yard line. He returned five yards. Two line plunges failed to gain and then O'Donnell made three yards at left end. A play at tackle by Birmingham resulted in no gain.

Herron kicked to Grundeman on De Paul's 20-yard line and he came back 20 yards. A lateral pass netted 25 yards at right end and another lateral from the 35-yard line resulted in a touchdown. The ball was called back as the umpire had not blown his whistle for play to resume.

On the next lineup, Lynn, De Paul's fullback, made 15 yards at right tackle on a delayed pass. Pond carried the ball into midfield and two rushes netted three yards.

BEVERLY SECURES THE BALL.

Lynn attempted a forward pass, which was incomplete, and Beverly secured the ball on downs.

Herron kicked from behind his goal line to Hamilton in midfield and no gain resulted. A poor pass lost De Paul 20 yards, and then a lateral was thrown into the arms of Heaphy at Beverly's 40-yard line.

O'Donnell fumbled, and on the first rush De Paul made seven yards at centre. Lynn made five more, and then came a penalty for holding. Pond made five yards before Heaphy tackled him. Pond shot a long forward pass, which Herron intercepted on his own 25-yard line.

Two rushes netted five yards, and

Everett then held and Central lost on the next line plays. Everett got the ball on downs on her 40-yard line, but on the first play Hendrian intercepted a forward pass. Loving made 5 yard around end. Mooget made first down on Everett's 40-yard line. A forward pass put the ball on Everett's 28-yard line. Failing to gain in three rushes, Centria attempted a goal by Hendrian from the 36-yard line. It failed. Everett's ball. Greene was forced to punt. Central's ball in midfield. A forward, Loving to Crook, bounded out of Crook's hands to Everett's, but the gain was not allowed Everett was penalized 10 yards for interfering with pass. Central was held for downs. Greene punted. End of game.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Italians and Austrians are fighting under appalling climatic conditions.

Wounded here, according to Italian dispatches received in Zurich, freeze to death by the hundreds before and even reach them. The same dispatches state that thousands are buried under the snow where the bodies will be until next Spring.

Dispatches from the front tell of the Italian troops attacking the almost impregnable Austrian positions in an icy gale of more than sixty miles an hour, sweeping across the mountain tops.

GERMANY MAY DELAY RECALL OF ATTACHES

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Officials of the German Embassy intimated this afternoon that Germany may not act on the request of this government that Captain Boy-Ed and Von Papen be recalled until the United States obtains the promise of the allies to allow other German officers to come through to this country to take their places.

It was stated that in any event it is highly improbable that the officers will be recalled until it is made certain that Captain Boy-Ed will be granted a safe conduct to Germany.

State Department officials would not comment on this development this afternoon.

From high sources it was learned, however, that this government is going to insist on the immediate recall of the two officers and will not permit Germany to delay action.

It was said by an official of the embassy today that the State Department has assured Ambassador von Hernstorff that it will try to get safe conduct for either or both of the attaches. The official added that the safe conduct will be asked only for Captain Boy-Ed. He pointed out that Captain von Papen is officially credited to Mexico, and that he will go there soon. He will make the trip by rail, it was stated.

FORD PEACE SHIP SAILS DESPITE THREAT

Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Ford said:

"Roosevelt's criticism was voluntary. The rest were asked for."

One of the pacifists's friends interrupted with: "Roosevelt is the chief comedian of the world," but when Mr. Ford was asked if that were his opinion, too, he replied:

"I won't talk on it at all."

SING OFFICIAL SONG.

The peace Argonauts came here by automobile from New York. Mr. Ford supplying vehicles for the staff of newspaper correspondents, as well as for the delegates whom he had invited to take the voyage.

On their arrival at the Scandinavian-American line dock the peace party sang for the first time the official song of the expedition, entitled "Peace and Prosperity."

Despite all sorts of eleventh-hour difficulties and arguments, and even threats, to dissuade him from the cruise, Mr. Ford insisted on sailing on his peace ship. "There is no turning back," he said. That threats were made against the life of the leader of the peace pilgrims was the statement of a prominent member of the party.

The last decorations of the peace ship were finished this forenoon as the baggage of the pacifist guests began to arrive at the Scandinavian-American line dock in Hoboken.

The interior of the Oscar II had been turned into a bower of bloom. Flowers ferns and palms were everywhere. They were banked against the walls. They bloomed on all the tables. They smiled a greeting in every cabin.

CHRISTMAS COLORS.

Green and red were the predominating colors of the decorations in response to the expressed desire of Mr. Ford, the decorators tried to solve the problem of suggesting peace without resorting to backneyed symbolism and had succeeded.

The spirit of Christmas is in the ship. The dark green and bright reds of the festoon and the holly wreaths speak even to a child the spirit of Christmas.

Soft, pillowy cushions were placed everywhere for the comfort of the guests in the state rooms, in the dining rooms and in the sitting rooms. Fresh, gay chintzes had replaced the usually sober colors of the leather lounges.

Mr. Ford's own suite rooms on the ship were decorated in tan chintz with an American flag draped gracefully on the wall. The same room in normal circumstances was the second cabin smoking room, but, as the decorator smilingly said, "Mr. Ford cannot smoke, so may he be wanted to have a place to go where he can't be asked to be smoking."

The cabin occupied by the pacifist leader was the bridal stateroom on the left side of the ship. The corresponding stateroom on the right side of the Oscar II was assigned to Madame Rosika Schwimmer, the woman peace leader. At first Mr. Ford had declined to accept a bridal suite and to quarter her, as well as stenographer at his headquarters, simply put him down on the list as occupying a cabin.

"THE LORD IS WITH US."

Mr. Ford slept late today. He was happy when he found the sun shining on arising and said: "The Lord is with us. He smiles on our peace mission."

And we are going to follow up the subsea gifts, to the cold—peace—nothing is going to stop us."

The pacifist was still in his pajamas when he received the band of newspaper correspondents.

"Everything is all right," said Mr. Ford. "All the passports for our party reached me this morning. They probably only for Ukraine to neutral countries, but that is all that most of the delegates want. For myself, however, I shall go to the countries where I have factories in some of my messports. I shall visit them as a private citizen, bent upon looking into his business interests."

Mr. Ford received the following telegram from Luther Burbank the plant wizard of Santa Rosa, Cal., which had been invited to join the peace expedition:

BURBANK SENDS REGRETS.

"Was away from home when your telegram arrived. Your efforts in this line will no doubt go down to posterity as the most humane, the most dramatic and the clearest exemplification of the Christ principle in the history of the planet.

"My heart is with you, but I am not used to cold weather and my life might be sacrificed on the effort of I tried to meet your steamer.

The pacifist expressed his regret over the absence of Burbank, after he had talked for a short time with Baronet Shibe Saw, a Japanese delegate to the conference. The conversation was carried on through an interpreter and was brief. The baron expressed a hope that the peace mission would be wholly successful.

Passports were issued at Washington for 173 persons to make the trip. The passport division of the State Department was kept open all night at the special request of former Secretary of State Bryan, so that all of those making the trip could get their passports. 1 a. m. today the final application was passed on and granted.

The party includes fifty-four reporters and three moving picture men. The only person that Mr. Ford would see after boarding the vessel was William Jennings Bryan.

"God bless you all, and may your mission be successful," were the parting words of the former Secretary of State.

As the ship worked her way out into midstream the ship's band was gaily playing "The Star Spangled Banner." Previously it had played "Yankee Doodle" and other typical American tunes.

Former Secretary Bryan did not go today. Within a couple of weeks, however, he will sail for The Hague, there to join the peace counsellors. The former Secretary of State says he can be of greater service to humanity if he stays here and fights the sort of preparedness that would keep an allen army out of America.

COST DOESN'T BOTHER FORD.

Mr. Ford said early today that this trip of the Ark had cost him between $50,000 and 150,000, but he'd spend five or six millions if success required.

Mr. Ford declared he didn't give a whoop whether France and England served him one or not.

"Every intelligent country can bar me for all I care. I don't need them. They need what I am trying to do for them."

Not all of the pilgrims believed in disarmament. Dr. Christian Lange of North Dakota declared he was going not to see what Europe looks like now.

"I took Dr. Ford I believed in preparedness," said the gentleman from Dakota. "I believe Americans should be prepared. We should have a mighty navy and an army strong enough to guarantee peace. I am not assuming that this trip will bring about peace, but it may have a certain moral effect."

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS.

"Europe's war is none of our business, but the peace of the world is everybody's business," said Miss Lochner, secretary of the Ford peace party.

"If America can help restore peace and keep within the bounds of propriety in so doing she can do no greater work.

"Who am I going? Why, to tell the truth, I am going at last to get what Europe lacks like nose. I was over here before the war, and I like to see how the war has affected Europe."

The party, designated by Mr. Ford as the peace committee of ten, will consist of Norway, its first stop; Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Switzerland and The Hague, Holland.

It is probable, Mr. Ford said, that the party will visit other European capitals, as the progress of the peace mission seems to require.

"When you arrive in Europe, what will be your first step to carry out your plans for peace?" was asked.

"All I can say is that we will consider on the way across the ocean," he replied. "We have not decided upon any definite steps yet. All we know is that the fighting nations are sick of war, that they want to stop and that they only are waiting only for some disinterested party to step in and help them."

"Some people in this world have seen fit to be skeptical about the success of this peace mission, but I, for one, think they will change their views.

"Any action taken toward peace is worthy of its support if the action is based upon good judgment and conviction."

"I am prepared to steer anything," if we fail this time we will try some other plan for ending the war. I'm not going to stop until the war is stopped. I'm going to keep on trying until peace has come again. What I shall do next if this mission fails I do not know, as yet I haven't any plan. But I shall do something. I am determined in that.

WILL KEEP TRYING.

"I have always been opposed to war and opposed to preparation for war. I really don't know just where my plan for the peace mission came from.

"The project of chartering a ship and holding a conference on the other side seemed to me best fitted to meet the situation. It simply appealed to me as the most suitable action now, so I started carrying it out.

"If we fail in this we shall start over again from the very beginning; that is all.

"The mission in reality is to arouse public sentiment against the horrors of war and in favor of peace. It asks people to thinking and wondering about the war."

"It has been said that you are of German origin, Mr. Ford; is that true?" he was asked.

"I've heard they were saying that. But I have looked that up and I find I haven't a drop of German blood in me. I find that I am a mixture of English, Irish and Dutch."

"What is your last word to America before leaving?"

"My last word is: 'Fight prepared-ness.'"

Official Peace Song Sung by the Ford Crusaders

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Standing on the deck, before the Oscar II. sailed, the Ford peace crusaders sang this song, the official anthem of the expedition, entitled "Peace and Prosperity":

The roar of cannon and flow of blood,
Have drenched the earth with grief and woe;
We have determined in our hearts
That we will no longer have it so.
The submarine and battleship
Have served the devil long and well;
The bloody sword and Zeppelin
Will find their resting place in hell.
The cannibal, Zulu and Indian chief,
The Army and the Navy will also come to grief;
The warriors of old lived with murder in their hearts,
The military spirit will be one of the lost arts.

Justice, brotherhood and friendship
Have come to take their place;
The glory of the stars and stripes
Is sure to win the race.
The banners of the armies will never be unfurled,
The stars and stripes will represent united peace of all the world.

CHORUS.

Peace on earth, good will to men—
Sing this message to all lands.
We love the dear old stars and stripes.
Because we are Americans.

Bernstein to Report Cruise for American

The AMERICAN has secured the services of Herman Bernstein, one of the best known of American writers, to report the Henry Ford Peace Trip, which starts today from New York.

Mr. Bernstein has acted as special correspondent in Europe for a number of leading American newspapers. He numbers among his friends many of the leading statesmen of Europe. He has translated and adapted for the American public a number of leading novels and plays by foreign authors. GIVE G.O.P. MORE MEMBERS ON COMMITTEES

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The Republican minority in the House of Representatives was given materially increased representation on the important House committees by the schedule of committee assignments submitted to the Democratic House caucus this afternoon by the Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee, acting as a committee on committees.

While the committee members were not named, the Democrats named only thirteen members of the big House committees, leaving eight places for Republicans. In the last Congress the important committees were divided, 14 and 7.

Field Marshal Von Mackensen Twice Wounded

By International News Service.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 4.—Field Marshal von Mackensen was twice wounded during the Serbian campaign, according to letters received from Berlin.

A bullet fired by a Serbian sharpshooter in Belgrade went through the German leader's arm and two days later a spent ball struck him in the shoulder.

For nearly two weeks the German General Staff made no mention of von Mackensen in the official reports. At the time it was attributed to the fact that he was believed to have been sent to Constantinople.

Another Ship for Relief of Belgium

A. C. Lombard's Sons' shipping office on State street announces that another relief ship will sail from Boston for Belgium within a week or two days. The Greek steamer Andreas, bound from Rotterdam to the Delaware Breakwater, will be ordered to Boston for the purpose and will take 320,000 bushels of wheat to Belgium.

Charles H. Clark of Portland, Me., has been appointed ancillary receiver for the Eastern Dredging Company by Judge Morton in the United States District Court, under $3,500 bonds.

GERMAN BARON IS QUESTIONED IN BOMB PLOT

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—All the convicted officials of the Hamburg-American Steamship line who were found guilty of conspiracy against the United States government were today sentenced to prison terms in Atlanta. The sentences were:

Dr. Karl Buens, managing director, one year and six months.

Adolph Hachmeister, purchasing agent, one year and six months.

George Koetter, supervising engineer, one year and six months.

Joseph Poepplnghaus, super-cargo, one year and one day.

The Hamburg-American line was fined $1,000.

The men were brought before Federal Judge Howe this morning for sentence. In fining the company $1 the judge said that "the less said about money in this case the better."

Dr. Buens and his associates took their sentences with true Spartan fortitude. Their expressionless faces never changed color when they heard the voice of Judge Howe sentencing them to the Atlanta Prison. Pending their announced appeal the convicted fendants were released on $10,000 bail each, furnished by a surety company. On trial they were at liberty on bail of $5,000. The bond was increased at the request of Roger B. Wood, assistant district attorney.

Even young Poepplnghaus, who became the father of a girl baby during the trial, mustered a smile as he shook hands with his fellows and their counsel after the ordeal was over.

The aged Dr Buens, long in the German diplomatic corps, came into court considerably ahead of time. He shook hands with the bailiff at the door and with William H. Leary, the clerk.

"I am ready for my medicine," he said. "I am responsible for my acts. But I want you to remember that I had not the slightest intention of harming the United States or violating its laws."

Hachmeister, Koetter and Poepplnghaus made no comments, but they agreed with Dr. Buens. They left immediately by their counsel, William Rand, Jr., Howard Gans and William T. Jerome.

Rand filed the usual formal motions to set aside the verdict, for a new trial and an arrest of judgment. The motions are promptly denied.

I ROSE TO PUNISHMENT.

"It now becomes my painful duty," said H. Snowden Marshall, District Attorney, in closing the case for the government. In a case like this, it is desirable that the punishment be substantial, for it measure the degree of culpability of these defendants, but as a wholesome warning to others offending in the same way.

"Have the defendants anything to say?" asked Judge Howe.

"They have nothing to say," said Attorney Rand.

"They have requested me to say for them that there was no corrupt purpose in their acts so far as the United States is concerned. They express the deepest regret, and Dr. Buens has charged me to say to this court that he alone was responsible and that his co-defendants merely carried out his orders."

"I have given deep consideration to this important case," said Judge Howe, slowly reading from a typewritten manuscript. In solemn tones he then sentenced each of the defendants. Buens, Koetter, Hachmeister and Poepplnghaus, to the penitentiary at Atlanta. Coming to the fifth defendant, the Hamburg-American Steamship Company, the Court said.

FINES LINE $1.

"The line itself is indicted, but a corporation cannot conspire. Whatever the line did was done by Mr. Buens. I have imposed on that one on the defendants because the less odor of money in this case the better. I cannot send the line to prison, so the Hamburg-American Steamship Company is fined one dollar."

There were two indictments against each defendant, but the Court pronounced judgment for only one. He ruled that none of the defendants should pay the costs of prosecution.

"In view of the age and infirmities of Dr. Buens," finished the judge, "it is found that incarceration in the Atlanta prison would jeopardize his health. I recommend that the Department of Justice take up this matter for immediate consideration."

Rand then entered notice of appeal to the United States Court of Appeals on a writ of error. The government made no objection and Marshal consented when Rand requested that the defendants' bail be renewed. The Court granted Rand four months to perfect and file the appeal.

QUESTION GERMAN BARON IN PROBE OF BOMB PLOT IN WEST

By International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4. — Baron George von Brincken, attache of the German Consulate in San Francisco, was today brought into the federal investigation of nation-wide bomb plots.

Revelations made before the government Grand Jury by Louis J. Smith, accomplice of Charles C. Crowley, under arrest on charges of conspiracy to destroying supply ships of the allies, caused United States Marshal Holohan and the head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice to question the baron at length as to his relationship with the German consulate here.

It was later reported the baron had been ordered to appear before the United States District Attorney in person for further questioning.

Other witnesses summoned to appear before District Attorney Preston, Monday, are Louis Boyle, pilot, and R. L. Harris, a stoker on the dreboat Sanquamie of Seattle, who will swear, it is understood, that Crowley boarded their craft a few hours after the dynamiting in Seattle Harbor last May of a barge of high-explosive consigned to the Russian government.

MISS RICHARDSON, WHO WAS WITH HOLDUP VICTIM

Miss Evelyn M. Richardson, who, the police say, has confessed she was with John A. McKane of Haverhill, who was robbed of $1,500 on West Boston Bridge.

Green street, the Boston police found other new purchases.

Chief Inspector Hurley has inspectors Michael Nollan, Fred M. Ellis and Thomas Condy and Patrolmen Robert Douglas, Leo Dynan and Anthony Dynan on the case, all working in co-operation with the Boston police.

M'KANE TO SEE THREE.

McKane, who was taken to a hospital and relieved sufficiently to allow him to go home to Lawrence, was summoned to Boston today by the police to identify the three.

According to the police, Miss Richardson accosted Patrolmen Deininger and Lewis in Hanover street, declaring that it was she who was with McKane. The policemen took her to the Hanover street station where they claim she told a detailed story of McKane's celebration and the walk across the bridge to the tower where the gang attacked him.

She said that there were four men in the gang, not six, as McKane claimed, and that she knew them. She denied, however, taking any of the money or of knowing that McKane had been robbed until she read the morning papers.

When she made her alleged confession to the police they accompanied her on a tour of the North and West Ends. She pointed out Swriins, who was taken into custody. They were both taken then to the Cambridge police headquarters. Later the West End police arrested Swriins.

TOLD TO "JUMP THE TOWN."

According to the police, Miss Richardson and Swriins talked of the affair and Miss Richardson said that she had received none of the money and asked if he had. The police say that Swriins denied to her that he had any of the money either.

Swriins, Miss Richardson claimed, according to the police, advised her to "jump the town," and offered to pay her carfare to Portsmouth, but she replied that she would stick it out and make a clean breast of the whole matter.

She also told the police that Swriins said that the others of the gang had taken an early train to New York. She said she was a native of Springfield, but had moved to Maine as a girl and was married there fifteen years ago, although she has been known as "Miss" Richardson. She said she had worked in East Boston, and had been living in Harvard street only about a month.

Berlin Denies That Germany Is Seeking Peace

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—A strong denial that Germany is seeking peace was issued through the official Overseas News Agency today. It was also said that the Kaiser has no intention of going to Constantinople. The statement issued by the Overseas follows:

"French newspapers pretend that Germany is always looking for peace when a military success is obtained. This is not only incorrect, but the reverse is true. Every time France suffers a reverse on the battlefield or in diplomacy, French papers invent German peace proposals in order to revive the drooping spirits at home.

"This is also the reason why news is being spread over the world that Germany wants peace; why invented reports of Prince von Buelow's mission are disseminated, and why similar intentions are attributed to other people.

All these reports are as untrue as that about the coming trip of the Emperor to Constantinople. This inventive activity only proves the severity of defeats suffered by Germany's enemies."

Submarines Get 2 British Ships in Mediterranean

By International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The British steamer Middleton, 3,586 tons, was sunk by a submarine in the Mediterranean Friday, four members of the crew being killed by the torpedo that destroyed the vessel. Nineteen men of the crew were saved and landed at Malta today.

The Middleton was built in 1895, and was owned by the Alexander Shipping Company of Hull. It was in the government service.

The British steamship Clan MacLeod has been sunk in the Mediterraneon by a submarine. The Clan Mac Leod, which displaced 4,796 tons, hailed from Glasgow and was engaged in Oriental trade. It was built in 1905 and was owned by Cayzer, Irvine & Co.

BABIES RESCUED AT FIRE IN QUINCY

Three women, each carrying a baby in her arms, and thirty men lodgers were led out of a four-apartment house at Nos. 226 and 228 Main street, Quincy Point, by Chief Engineer Faxon Billings and his chauffeur, William Leahy. All escaped in their nightclothes.

The fire began in the basement and was confined there, though dense smoke filled the hallways and bedrooms. The firemen forced the front door and awakened the lodgers. Some of them were dazed by the smoke and unable to help themselves.

The lodgers were lined up in the hallways and marched to the street. Several attempted to return to their rooms to secure personal belongings, but Chief Billings stationed men at the doors to prevent this. Some lodgers were forcibly removed from the building.

Haddad Hajia insisted his brother was in a room on the top floor and ran up a ladder when the firemen were not watching. He was brought back to ground and placed in charge of a policeman.

Ships Bring in Big Cargoes for Boston

A number of big cargoes has come into Boston today from the sea. The British ship Auchendale brought 1,400 bales of wool and 400 tons of chalk from Liverpool the British ship Highland Place brought 2,000 bales of wool, worth a million dollars, from Port Natal, South Africa. The American steamer Santurce brought 1,000,000 pounds of sugar from Cuba. A big cargo of wools, hides and the like came from Buenos Ayres in the ship Warren, and the Goya brought 3,500 tons of nitrate from Chili, having been forced by the blocking of the Panama Canal to round the Horn to get here.

Dr. Horton Pleads for Boston Common

The Rev. Dr. Edward A. Horton, president of the Boston Common Society, issued an appeal to the voters of Boston to vote "No" on the proposition to take land from the Common to widen adjoining streets. He argued that the plan would increase dangers to pedestrians and was intended only to accommodate automobiles by providing a parking zone in Tremont street, at the expense of citizens who do not use automobiles. He also urged that the iron fence be replaced along the Tremont street side of the Common.

Report Sinking of Greek Transport

By International News Service.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—An Athens dispatch says that the Greek transport Zrifi, 5,000 tons, was sunk yesterday by a German submarine near Malta, but the crew was saved.

A dispatch received from London on Thursday reported the sinking of the Greek steamer Zarifis. The foregoing dispatch probably refers to the same vessel as available naval and marine records do not list any vessel named the Zrifi. The Zarifis displaced 3,940 tons.

FOREIGN CRAFT ARE SEIZED BY RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, Dec. 4.—All steamers, barges and tugs owned by foreigners and anchored in Rumanian ports will be commandeered on Monday, it was officially announced today.

By International News Service

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Greece has refused the allies' demands that it disarm Teuton troops who pursue the Serbians or Entente forces go to Greek territory, according to a statement made by the Berlin Tageblatt and transmitted from Copenhagen by a correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company.

"Greece," the Tageblatt is quoted as saying, "has agreed to give the allies free use of the railway in Grecian Macedonia and the Aegean harbors, including Kavala, but the Greeks refused to disarm the central powers' troops pursuing the allies on to Grecian territory. The central powers are offering Greece the Aegean Islands and Southern Albania if she refuses to enforce demands of the allies and remain neutral."

"Three Bulgarian divisions (60,000 men) have crossed Hungary en route to the Italian or Franco-British front in the West," says a Bucharest dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

A message received from Geneva today stated that large Austro-German forces were being sent to the Isonzo front in an effort to save Gorizia from the Italians.

ARNAUTS AID TEUTONS.

Mohammedan Albanians are helping the Teutonic allies conquer Montenegro and Albania. Thousands of these Arnauts, as they are called, have started to wage guerilla warfare against the Serbians and Montenegrins in the mountains.

Two thousand more Serbians have been captured in battles in the Balkans, the Berlin War Office announced today. The following official report of operations in the Balkan theatre was issued in Berlin.

"Battles with scattered Serbians in the mountains continue. Two thousand prisoners and deserters were captured yesterday."

Anglo-French forces in Southern Serbia have fallen back again. They are now at Prilep, probably near the Greek frontier.

Reports published on Wednesday that detachments of Serb troops fled into Greece were confirmed by an Exchange Telegraph Company dispatch from Rome today. Apparently they were disarmed yesterday.

Reports that Russian troops have entered Bulgaria were without confirmation today. It is believed in Sofia by the way of the Danube. The Russians have massed 40,000 men along the Danube, according to information from Geneva.

MONTENEGRINS RETIRE.

Berlin reports a continuation of success in Montenegro and this is borne out by an official dispatch from Cettinje saying that the Montenegrins have been compelled to retire before superior numbers.

NEW BEDFORD'S VOTE SCANDAL BEFORE COURT

NEW BEDFORD, Dec. 4.—Alexander Pothier, a New Bedford voter, swore on the witness stand in court today that Alfred Bird of Bird & Robinson, North End liquor dealers, offered him $7 in a back room of Bird's saloon on November 29 to vote for Mayor Edward R. Hathaway for reelection next Tuesday, the money to be paid over only on condition Hathaway won.

John Dacey and James Newton, detectives from the Boston bureau of the W. J. Burns Detective Agency, swore they were present and heard Bird make the $7 offer.

Bird, who was on trial on a charge of having purchased Pothier's vote, took the stand in his own defense with a general denial. He admitted some of the conversation, as testified to by State witnesses, but said that he understood Pothier merely wished to go on record as a Hathaway voter and that, when Pothier wanted $7, he (Bird) said there was "nothing doing." The hearing went over to the afternoon court session.

BIG CROWD AT HEARING.

The hearing brought a big gallery, result of the excitement following the arrest last night of Bird and the search for twi other men on similar vote-buying charges.

Bird was represented by T. F. O'Brien and came to court prepared to have the case heard, without continuance. The prosecution was represented by Edward B. Jourdaine and William C. Parker, president of the local bar association.

Detective Dacey testified in part:

"Newton and I met Pothier in Bird's saloon November 26. We went into a back room. Bird came in and talked with Pothier while Newton and I were there, about the coming election.

"Bird wanted Pothier to vote for Hathaway and said to him: 'There will be seven dollars in it.' Then Bird took out some slips of paper and wrote Pothier's name, ward and precinct on one and said to Pothier: 'Now, Pothier, if Hathaway wins you get your $7. Nothing doing if Hathaway loses.' Pothier said: 'That's all right. I understand what that means.' Bird then folded up his papers and left the room and the party broke up."

ADMITS MANY DRINKS.

Under cross-examination Dacey admitted that, before they went into Bird's place, he had had from fifteen to twenty drinks of beer and whiskey. Asked if he thought himself in his right senses after so many drinks, the detective said he thought he knew what he was about.

Newton corroborated Dacey's testimony. Pothier took the stand, saying:

"The trade was made between me and Bird, and I was going to vote for Hathaway. If Hathaway won, I expected to get my seven dollars, as agreed upon at that time."

Bird was first on the stand in his own defense. He made a general denial, but later admitted conversation up to a certain point. He said that Pothier merely wished to be booked as a Hathaway man. Then Bird went on:

"Pothier claimed it would be worth $7 to him. When it got to that point I said: 'Gentlemen, there's nothing doing. I'm out of politics.' Then I got up and left the room."

Other defense witnesses were scheduled to go on this afternoon.

GIRL RAN AWAY TO LIFT BURDEN OFF PARENTS

Pearl Adamore, the Lynn girl who was finally found at the Psychopathic Hospital after being mysteriously missing since November 22, ran away and tried to conceal her identity for the sole reason, according to the belief of the Lynn police, of relieving her parents from the expense of caring for her.

Although she is fifteen years old, she had long begged her parents for permission to leave school and go to work to help support the family. But her mother, crippled by an injury to her knee, insisted on her staying at school in spite of the fact that her father's salary is so small that food is never overplenty in the house.

GIRL'S PARENTS POOR.

The girl's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Adamore of No. 261 Essex street, Lynn. John Adamore has a "job" in a shoe factory at the munificent salary of from four to six dollars a week. So difficult was it for the family to make both ends come anywhere near meeting that the expense of car fares, incurred in the hunt for the missing daughter, left Mr. and Mrs. Adamore with no more substantial Thanksgiving dinner than the torturing odor of the dinner of the family in the flat below.

The family prevailed this week was little better. In four days two loaves of dry bread, a few crackers soaked in water and spread with sugar, has been the sole nourishment of Mr. Adamore and his crippled wife.

It was on this account, the police believe, that the fifteen-year-old daughter decided that she was too much burden for her father and mother, and, child like, seized at the first idea that presented itself to her to relieve them of the burden.

WANDERING THE STREETS.

Last week the girl was found wandering about the streets in Boston by a woman who took her to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The agents of the society were unable to secure any real clew from the girl that would indicate her identity, believing that her contradictory stories of where she came from or who she was, was due to mental derangement, and transferred her to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation.

At the hospital she became known as the "mystery girl." Through the courtesy of the police and the hospital authorities, who thought the "mystery girl's" description tallied with that of the missing Pearl, a friend of the family, Edward Simard, visited her at the hospital.

Warn Auto Concerns on Endurance Tests

The Massachusetts Highway Commission has served notice on all automobile agents that endurance tests are prohibited on the highways of this State.

The notice came as a result of a recent endurance contest. The dealers and two drivers' licenses were suspended for one week and two weeks, respectively. The commission said:

"As this is the first case of this kind that has been called to the attention of the commission, it has made short suspensions, because the parties were somewhat ignorant of the law and of their rights in the premises. The commission hopes that the newspapers will give this case full publicity, so that the public will have full notice of it, and of the fact that further cases of this kind will not be dealt with as leniently."

Rantoul Arguments to Come December 13

The hearing on the petition of Edward L. Rantoul of Boston and Beverly Farms who seeks to secure the custody of his two children, Elizabeth Lowell, eleven, and Harriett Charlotte, ten, from his wife, Lois Burnett Rantoul, granddaughter of the poet, James Russell Lowell, which has been in progress for the better part of the past two weeks before Judge McIntire, in the East Cambridge Probate Court, has been adjourned until Monday, December 13, when the arguments will be heard.

ZIONIST FLAG, miniatures of which will be sold in Jewish districts tomorrow to aid Back-to-Palestine Fund.

JEWS OBSERVE ZION FLAG DAY TOMORROW

Tomorrow is "Zion Flag Day" for the Zionists of America.

All Jews interested in work for the Jewish people and Palestine are invited to show their sympathy by buying the flag of Zion and wear this emblem of Jewish nationality during the Chanukah festival, which commemorates the victories of the Maccabees, the family of Jewish heroes who, by realizing the invasion of the Syrians 2,181 years ago, established the political independence of the Jewish state in Palestine.

Complete arrangements have been made for the "Zion Flag Day" in Greater Boston. Hundreds of Zionists will offer for sale in the Jewish districts miniature Zionist flags, the proceeds which are to go to the National Fund colonies and farms in Palestine, and for otherwise providing relief by employment of the Jewish war sufferers in the Holy Land.

The Greater Boston Zion Association, of which Louis D. Brandeis is honorary president; the Hasmonean, Libitius Zion Club, Beth-El Zion Association, Beth David Camp, Hatikvah Camp, Advocates of Zion, and the Herzl Girls, have all combined for the purpose of making the Zion Flag Day both a moral and financial success.

The Jewish National Fund has undertaken the task of redeeming the soil of Palestine for the Jews willing to cultivate it and live on it. It wants to get back for the Jewish people that which any civilization would deem the greatest of its treasures.

Through the Anglo-Palestine Company the Jewish National Fund has granted loans to individuals and groups in the Jewish colonies, enabling them to establish themselves firmly and to extend their plantation.

It has aided the Bezalel School of Arts and Crafts of Jerusalem to settle Jewish workmen with their families on the Jewish National Fund land. Each family has a cottage, with a plot for gardening-farming. Domestic industry is thus established in the open country and connected with agricultural pursuits.

Elihu D. Stone, secretary of the Zionist National Fund Committee for Greater Boston, is directing the Flag Day campaign in this city.

Prefers to See Child Dead Than Crippled

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 4.—Rather than that her six months' old boy should go through life a helpless cripple, Mrs. William Hilton of this city has refused to permit the physicians at Johns Hopkins Hospital to operate upon it.

The child was frightfully burned last Tuesday and the doctors decided it would be necessary to amputate both its legs and one arm.

"I would rather my baby die," said Mrs. Hilton.

The infant was said to have been mentally and physically normal up to the time of the accident.

Hold Rockport Man for Omaha Murder

OMAHA, Dec. 4.—Guy Leman of Rockport, Mass., is in jail here charged with the murder of C. D. Campbell, who was killed two weeks ago when he resisted an effort on the part of two robbers to hold him up.

Leman has been identified by a witness. The Massachusetts man says he was so drunk on that date that he does not know what he was doing.

Lid on Chicago's New Year's Eve

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The lid is to be clamped down tight this year on the New Year's eve celebration, one of Chicago's greatest and most joyous festivals, declared Mayor Thompson. He said the law must be strictly observed and cafes and restaurants will have to close their bars sharply at 1 o'clock.

Newton Residence Destroyed by Fire

PRESIDENT WEDS MRS. GALT ON DEC. 18

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—It was officially announced at the White House today that President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt will be married on Saturday, December 18.

As previously stated, the ceremony will take place at Mrs. Galt's home at No. 1238 Twentieth street.

No invitations to the wedding will be issued, it was announced. The only attendants will be Mrs. Galt's mother, Mrs. William F. Bolling; her brother and sister, the President's daughter, Miss Margaret Wilson; his brother and sister and members of the two immediate households.

Though not officially confirmed, it was reliably reported that the Rev. Herbert Scott Smith, rector of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, of which Mrs. Galt is a member, will perform the ceremony.

The time of the wedding was not officially made known.

Intimate friend of the President are known to believe that it will take place at 6 o'clock in the evening. It was again made plain at the White House today that the President and Mrs. Galt earnestly desire that diplomats, Congressmen and officials refrain from sending gifts.

In this connection it was learned that the Cuban Minister called at the State Department yesterday to learn how gifts should be sent to the President and his future bride. He was informed that the President does not want any gifts made.

No announcement was made concerning the plans for the wedding trip. No secret has been made of the fact, however, that the presidential yacht, the Mayflower, has been entirely refurnished and made ready for a voyage.

All of the officers and members of the crew have been refused leave of absence for the Christmas holidays. It is presumed that the President and his bride will sail from here in the Mayflower down to the ocean and then along the coast to one of the Southern cities.

Three Accused of Springfield Break

SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 4.—Three men, giving the names of George A. Reedy, William A. Burns and Francis H. Allen, were arrested early today charged with breaking and entering Miner's drug store at Main and Worth, and stealing $28.00. The police said the trio were about to carry away in an automobile several hundred dollars worth of cigars. In court all three pleaded not guilty. The case was continued until December 10, Reedy being held in $2,000 and the other two in $1,500 each.

Working Girl Finds Lost $15,000 Gems

Jewels lost in New York by Mrs. George H. Dohyne of No. 138 Bay State road, and for whose return a reward of $1,000 has been offered, have been found by a working girl according to dispatches today from New York. The finder has been offered $15,000. Mrs. Dohyne and her husband, who is a shoe machinery manufacturer, were en route from Boston to Virginia Hot Springs when the gems were lost.

Man Is Held for Attack with Hammer

Patrick J. Lennon who arraigned in the South Boston court charged with assault and battery on Joseph F. Sullivan with a hammer. He pleaded not guilty and his case was continued one week. He will await the result of the injury to Sullivan, who is in the City Hospital with a fractured skull. Bail was fixed at $1,000. Both men are employed by the New Haven Railroad, Sullivan as foreman, and during an argument in the Dover street yard it is alleged that Lennon struck Sullivan on the head.

British Reverse in Persian Gulf Zone

By International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Admission of a British reverse in the Persian Gulf War zone is contained in the following official statement given out today: "General Townsend reports a rearguard action with the Turks in the Mesopotamia Valley on Tuesday night a few miles from Kut-el-Amara, to which the British are retiring. The British casualties were 150. Two river boats were disabled and abandoned."

French Commission Will Leave Tonight

Members of the French Industrial Commission, in Boston to plan for cooperation with American industries in the work of rebuilding France after the war, will leave today for New York. Some members of the commission will later visit other parts of New England.

Emil Delsalle, the textile member, with two others, went today to Lawrence to inspect the Woolen mills. G. Chouffour, the tanning member, visited the First National and other financial institutions.

Du Pont Firm Buys $7,000,000 Plant

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The du Pont Powder Company is said to have paid today nearly $7,000,000 cash for the Arlington Company of Arlington, N. J., manufacturers of "pyralin," a celluloid product.

Whitlock May Go to Havre on Return to Post

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Dispatch from Amsterdam that Brand Whitlock, United States Minister to Belgium, will not return to Brussels were without confirmation today.

However, ever since Mr Whitlock returned to the United States it has been reported from time to time that he might not return. German military authorities in Belgium evidently regard that country as German soil, and there has been open resentment against the presence there of the American minister.

Properly speaking, the Belgian capital is now at Havre, and it is possible that Mr. Whitlock, upon his return to Europe, will go there instead of to Brussels.

Records Lost in Fire.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 4.—The town offices of the town of Rye were badly damaged by fire that started in a nearby upholstering shop early today. Some valuable records were lost.

CURLEY DENIES ANY HAND IN ROORBACK

Mayor Curley today denied knowing anything about the now famous "Otis B. Phillips" letter, saying:

"I never met Mr. Phillips. I do not know him and know nothing at all about the circular. They charge me with about everything, so they might as well charge me with this.

"The Good Government Association should bear in mind that I am not a candidate. They should go after those there who are candidates.

"I see that they blame Mr. Berwin. Do you think that a man of the standing of Mr. Berwin would be sending out a circular advising people to vote for his opponents?"

INSIDE THE LINES

A Fascinating New Love Story of the European War
By EARL DERR BIGGERS, Author of "Seven Keys to Baldpate," and Robert Welles Ritchie

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALMENTS.

The scene is at Government House, Gibraltar; the time the first week of the European War. Jane Gerson, an American girl buying Paris gowns for a New York house, has fled from Paris to Gib., with precious models.

At Calais she has been aided over baggage by a man introducing himself as Captain Woodhouse of the English signal service, but who denies, when he encounters her at Gib., that he ever saw her before. He pledges Jane to secrecy.

Woodhouse is a spy for the Wilhelmstrasse, the German intelligence machine, which plots to get him into Gibraltar in place of the real Captain Woodhouse, who has been intercepted and overpowered at Alexandria through Dr. Koch.

Louisa, a Wilhelmstrasse worker, has used Billy Capper, a discredited spy, as a dupe to have him furnished with a Wilhelmstrasse number (1932), which the false Woodhouse gets.

Lady Crandall, a former American girl and now wife of the Governor-General of Gib., invites Jane Gerson and the Shermans, a party of stranded Americans, to Government House to await the sailing of the Saxonia.

Louisa, now posing as Josepha, a cigar girl, has come to Gibraltar and is working with Proprietor Almer of the Hotel Splendide, a third Wilhelmstrasse conspirator. Almer tells Woodhouse of Room D in the signal tower on the Rock which controls the harbor mines over which the British fleet will anchor. There is a fellow-conspirator in the Crandall household, too. Woodhouse reports to General Crandall, being accepted as the real Woodhouse.

Billy Capper comes to General Crandall to sell out the plot for money and revenge.

Capper tells all, is discredited and hustled out of Gibraltar, but General Crandall is uneasy. He bids Lady Crandall invite the Captain to afternoon tea and sends for Major Bishop, who was on the Rock when the real Woodhouse was there seven years before.

General Crandall vainly quizzes Jane. He and Major Bishop plan to test Woodhouse by a seven-year-old picture of Lady Craigen. Capper sends parting word to arrest Josepha. Almer is warned. To save Woodhouse Almer finds Jane on the parade ground and gives her a cigarette case for Woodhouse. Willy Kimball, an American, lights one of the cigarettes. Jane spies an odd shadow line on the wrapper.

The shadow line grows, under the heat of the lighted tip, to writing a warning message for Woodhouse. Jane destroys the cigarette through a ruse. General Crandall orders Jaimihr Khan, his East Indian servant, to search Woodhouse's room. Woodhouse comes to tea. Jane just has time to warn him when General Crandall and Major Bishop came.

Aided by the distracted Jane, Woodhouse answers all catch questions of Crandall and Bishop. He declares his love to Jane, who demands proofs of his honesty. The British fleet arrives. Jaimihr returns to report on his search of Woodhouse's room, discloses to Woodhouse that he is the secret spy on the Rock and tells Crandall he found nothing incriminating. Woodhouse takes up signal tower duty, right over Room D, from which the fleet can be blown up.

JAIMIHR KHAN'S PASSION: "Jaimihr's voice vibrated with hate, 'For five years I have been waiting. Five years a servant. Tomorrow, near dawn—the English fleet will be shattered and ablaze in the harbor—the water red, like blood, with the flames. Then, by the breath of Allah, my service ends.'"

CHAPTER XLIV.
Taut Nerves.

CAPTAIN WOODHOUSE'S duties were not arduous. He had as single companion a sergeant of the signal service, whose post was at the window overlooking the harbor.

The sergeant read the semaphore message from the slender signal arm on the flagship's bridge—directions for the coal barges' movements, businesslike orders to be transmitted to the quartermaster in charge of the naval stores ashore, and such humdrum of routine. These Woodhouse recorded and forwarded to their various destinations over the telephone.

He had much time for thought—and much to think about.

Yesterday's scene in the library of Government House—his grilling by the two suspicious men, when a false answer on his part would have been the first step toward a firing squad. Yes, and what had followed between himself and the little American—the girl who had protected and aided him—ah, the pain of that trial was hardly less poignant than had been the terror of the one preceding it.

She had asked him to prove to her that he was not what she thought him. Before another day was past she would be out of his life and would depart, believing—yes, convinced—that the task he had set himself to do was a dishonorable one. She could not know that the soldiers of the Hidden Army have claim to heroism no less than they who join battle under the sun.

But he was to see Jane Gerson once more; Woodhouse caught at this circumstance as something precious. Tonight at Government House Lady Crandall's dinner to the refugee Americans on the eve of their departure would offer a last opportunity. How could he turn it to the desire of his heart?

One more incident of a crowded yesterday gave Woodhouse a crust for rumination—the unmasking of Jaimihr Kahn, the Indian, had elected for himself at that critical minute when it lay in his power to betray the stranger in the garrison.

The captain reviewed the incident with great satisfaction—how of a sudden the wily Indian had changed from an enemy holding a man's life in his hand to that "friend in Government House," of whose existence the cautious Almer had hinted, but whose identity he had kept concealed. Almer had said that this "friend" could lay his hand on the combination to Room D in the signal tower when the proper moment arrived. Now that he knew Jaimihr Kahn in his true stripe, Woodhouse made no doubt of his ability to fulfill Almer's prophecy.

And the proper moment would be this night! Tonight, on the eve of the great fleet's sailing, what Woodhouse had come to Gibraltar to do must be accomplished or not at all.

The man's nerves were taut, and he rose to step to the bayward window, there to look down on the embattled splendor of England's defence. Steel forts ranged all in rows, awaiting but the opportunity to loose their lightnings of obliteration against the ships or an enemy. Cardboard ships! Shadows of dreams! In Room D, just below his feet, a hand on the switches—a downward push, and then——

• • • • • •

Lady Crandall's dinner in Government House was in full tide of hilarity. Under the heavy groined ceiling the spread table with its napery and silver was the one spot of light in the long shadowed dining room.

Round it sat the refugees—folk who had eaten black bread and sausages and called that a meal; who had dodged and twisted under the careless scourge of a war beyond their understanding and sympathies, ridden in springless carts, been bullied and hectored by military martinets and beggared by panicky banks. Now, with the first glimpse of freedom already in sight and under the warming influence of an American hostess' real American meal, they were swept off their feet by high spirits almost childlike.

Henry J. Sherman, Kewanee's vagrant son returning from painful pilgrimage, sat at the right of Lady Crandall; his pink face was glowing with humor. To Consul Reynolds, who swore he would have to pay for thus neglecting his consulate for so much as two hours, had fallen the honor of escorting Mrs. Sherman to table. Willy Kimball, polished as to shirt bosom and sleek hair, had eyes and ears for none but the blithe Kitty. Next to General Crandall sat Jane Gerson, radiant in a dinner gown of tricky gauze overlaid on silk. At her right was Captain Woodhouse, in proper uniform dinner coat faced with red and gold.

Of the whole company Woodhouse alone appeared constrained. The girl by his side had been cool in her greeting that evening; to his conversational sallies she had answered with indifference, and now at table she divided her favors between General Crandall and the perky little consul across the table. It seemed to Woodhouse that she purposely added a lash of cruelty to her joy at the approaching departure on the morrow.

"Oh, you must all listen to this!" Kitty Sherman commanded the attention of the table, with a clapping of hands. "Go ahead, Will; he had the funniest accident—tell them about it."

Young Kimball looked conscious and began to stammer.

"You're getting us all excited, Willy," Henry J. boomed from the opposite side of the table. "What happened?"

"Why—ah—really quite ridiculous, you know. Hardly a matter to—ah—talk about." Willy fumbled the rose in the lapel of his jacket and searched for words. "You see, this morning I was thinking very hard about what I would do when I got back to Kewanee—ah, quite enthusiastic I am about the little town, now—and I—well, I mean to say, I got into my bath with my wrist watch on."

CHAPTER XLV.
An Awkward Meaning

SHOUTS of laughter added to the youth's confusion. Sherman leaned far across the table and advised him in a hoarse whisper:

"But a dollar Ingersoll, Willy. It floats!"

"Well, you might give him one of yours father," Kitty put in, in quick defence. "Anybody who'd carry two watches around——"

"Two watches?" Lady Crandall was interested.

Henry J. beamed expansively, pulled away his napkin, and proudly lifted from each waistcoat pocket a ponderous watch, linked by the thick chain passing through a buttonhole.

"This one"—he raised the right-hand timepiece—"tells the time of the place I happen to be in—changed it so often I guess the works'll never be the same again. But this one is my pet. Here's Kewanee time—not touched since we pulled out of the C., B. & Q. station on the twentieth of last May." He turned the face around for the others to read: "Just three in the afternoon there now. Old Ed Porter's got the Daily Enterprise out on the street, and he's tilted back in his office chair, readin' the Chicago Tribune that's just got in on the two-five train. The boys at the bank are goin' out to the country club for golf—young Pete Andrews wearin' the knickerbockers his wife cut down from his old overcoat; sort of a horse-blanket pattern, you might say. The town's just dozin' in the afternoon sun and—and not givin' a hang whether Henry J. Sherman and family gets back or not."

"You're an old dear!" Lady Crandall bubbled. "Some day Kewanee will erect a statue to you."

The talk turned to art, and the man from Kewanee even had the stolid general wiping the tears from his eyes by his description and criticism of some of the masters his wife had trotted him around to admire.

"Willy, you'll be interested to know we got a painter in Kewanee now," Henry J. cried. "'Member young Frank Coales—old Henry Coales' son? Well, he turned out to be an artist. Too bad, too; his folks was fine people. But Frank was awfuly headstrong about art. Painted a war picture about as big as that wall there. Couldn't find a buyer right away, so he turned it over to Tim Burns, who keeps the saloon on Main street. Been busy ever since, sorta taking it out in trade, you might say."

The Oriental Was a Bit Startled.

Table talk was running at a gay rate when Mrs. Sherman, who had sent frequent searching glances at Captain Woodhouse over the nodding buds of the flower piece in the centre of the board, suddenly broke out:

"Ah, Captain Woodhouse, now I remember where I've seen you before! I thought your face was familiar the minute I set my eyes on you this evening."

Jaimihr Khan, who stood behind the general's chair, arms folded and motionless, swiftly lifted one hand to his lips, but immediately mastered himself again. General Crandall looked up with a sharp crinkle of interest between his eyes. Captain Woodhouse, unperturbed, turned to the Kewanee dowager.

"You have seen me before, Mrs. Sherman?"

"I am sure of it," the lady announced, with decision. The other diners were listening now.

"Indeed! And where?" Woodhouse was smiling polite attention.

"Why, at the Winter Garden, in Berlin—a month ago!" Mrs. Sherman was hugely satisfied with her identification. She appealed to her husband for confirmation. "Remember, father, that gentleman I mistook for Albert Downs, back home, that night we saw that—er—wicked performance?"

"Can't say I do," Sherman answered tolerantly.

Woodhouse, still smiling, addressed Mrs. Sherman:

"Frightfully sorry to disappoint you, Mrs. Sherman, but I was not in Berlin a month ago. I came here from Egypt, where I had been several years." Woodhouse heard Jane at his elbow catch her breath.

"See, mother, there you go on your old hobby of recognizin' folks," Sherman chided. Then, to the others: "Why, she's seen all Kewanee since she came here to Europe. Even got a glimpse of the Methodist minister at Monte Carlo."

"I have never been in Berlin in my life, Mrs. Sherman," Woodhouse was adding. "So, of course——"

"Well, I suppose I am wrong," the lady admitted. "But still I could swear."

The governor, who had kept a cold eye on his subordinate during this colloquy, now caught Woodhouse's glance. The captain smiled frankly.

"Another such unexpected identification, General, and you'll have me in the cells as a spy, I dare say," he remarked.

"Quite likely," Crandall answered shortly, and took up his fork again. A maid stepped to Lady Crandall's chair at this juncture and whispered something. The latter spoke to Woodhouse:

"You're wanted on the telephone in the library, Captain. Very important, so the importunate person at the other end of the wire informs the maid."

Woodhouse looked his confusion.

"Probably that silly ass at the quay who lost a bag of mine when I landed," he apologized, as he rose. "If you'll pardon me——"

Woodhouse passed up the stairs and into the library. He was surprised to find Jaimihr Khan standing at the telephone, his hand just in the act of setting the receiver back on the hook.

CHAPTER XLVI.
We Must Act.

THE Indian stepped swiftly to the double doors and shut them behind the captain.

"A thousand pardons, Cap-tain"—he spoke hurriedly—"the cap-tain will stand near the telephone. They may come from the dining room at any minute."

"What is all this?" Woodhouse began. "I was called on the telephone."

"A call I had inspired, Cap-tain. It was necessary to see you—at once and alone."

"Tactless! With the general suspecting me—you heard what that woman from America said at the table—she has eyes in her head!"

"I think he still trusts you, Cap-tain," the Indian replied. "And tonight we must act. The fleet sails at noon tomorrow."

"We?" Woodhouse was on his guard at once. "What do you mean by 'we'?"

Jaimihr Khan smiled at the evasion.

"Yesterday in this room, Cap-tain, I burned a roll of plans——"

"Which I had good reason to wish saved," Woodhouse caught him up.

"No matter; I burned them—at a moment when you were—in great peril, Cap-tain."

"Burned them, yes—perhaps to trap me further."

The Indian made a gesture of impatience. "Oh, excellent discretion!" he cried in suppressed exasperation. "But we waste time that is precious. Tonight——"

"Before another word is spoken, let me have your card—your Wilhelmstrasse number," Woodhouse demanded.

"I carry no card. I am more discreet than—some," the other answered insinuatingly.

"No card? Your number, then?"

Jaimihr Khan brought his lips close to the white man's ear and whispered a number.

"Is that not correct?" he asked.

Woodhouse nodded curtly.

"And now that we are properly introduced," Jaimihr began, with a sardonic smile, "may I venture a criticism? Your pardon, Cap-tain; but our critics, they help us to per-fection. Since when have men who come from the Wilhelmstrasse allowed themselves to make love in drawing-rooms?"

"You mean——"

"You and the young woman from America—when I found you together here yesterday——"

"That is my affair," was Woodhouse's hot response.

"The affair on which we work—this night—that is my affair, be veree sure!" There was something of menace in the Indian's tone.

Woodhouse bowed to his demand for an explanation. "That young woman, as it happens, must be kept on our side. She saw me in France, when Captain Woodhouse was supposed to be in Egypt."

"Ah, so?" Jaimihr inclined his head with a slight gesture craving pardon. "For that reason you make a conquest. I did not un-derstand."

"No matter. The fleet sails at noon."

"And our moment is here—tonight," Jaimihr whispered in exultation. "Not until today did they admit you to the tower, Cap-tain. How is it there?"

"A simple matter—with the combination to the door of Room D."

With a single stride the Indian was over before the door of the wall safe. He pointed.

"The combination of the inner door—it is in a special compartment of that safe, protected by many wires. Before dawn I cut the wires—and come to you with the combination."

"At whatever hour is best for you," Woodhouse put in eagerly.

"Let us say three-thirty," Jaimihr answered. "You will be waiting for me at the Hotel Splendide with—our friends there. I shall come to you there, give you the combination, and you shall go through the lines to the signal tower."

"There must be no slip," Woodhouse sternly warned.

"Not on my part. Cap-tain—count on that. For five years I have been waiting—waiting. Five years a servant—yes, my General; no, my General; very good, my General." The man's voice vibrated with hate. "Tomorrow, near dawn—the English fleet shattered and ablaze in the harbor—the water red, like blood, with the flames. Then, by the breath of Allah, my service ends!"

Voices sounded in the hallway outside the double doors. Jaimihr Khan, a finger to his lips, nodded as he whispered: "Three-thirty, at the Splendide." He faded like a white wraith through the door to General Crandall's room as the double doors opened and the masculine faction of the dinner party entered.

Woodhouse rose from a stooping position at the telephone and faced them. To the general, whose sharp scrutiny stabbed like thin knives, he made plausible explanation. The beggar who lost his bag wanted a complete identification of it—had run it down at Algeciras.

Jaimihr Glided Through the Door.

"I understand," Crandall grunted.

When the cigars were lit, General Crandall excused himself for a minute, sat at his desk, and hurriedly scratched a note. Summoning Jaimihr, he ordered that the note be dispatched by orderly direct to Major Bishop and given to no other hands.

Woodhouse, who overheard his superior officer's command, was filled with vague apprehensions. What Mrs. Sherman had said at table—this hurried note to Bishop; there was but one interpretation to give to the affair—Crandall's suspicions were alive again. Yet at three-thirty—at the Hotel Splendide.

But when Crandall came back to join the circle of smokers, he was all geniality. The women came in by way of Jane Gerson's room; they had been taking a farewell peek at her dazzling stock of gowns, they said, before they were packed for the teamer.

"There was one or two I just had to see again," Mrs. Sherman explained for the benefit of all, "before I said good-by to them. One of them, by Madam Paquin, father, I'm going to copy when we get home. I'll be the first to introduce a Paquin into little Kewanee."

"Well, don't get into trouble with the minister, mother," Henry J. warned. "Some of the French gowns I've seen on this trip certainly would stir things up in Kewanee."

Jaimihr served the coffee. Woodhouse tried to maneuver Jane into a tete-a-tete in an angle of the massive fireplace, but she outgeneraled him, and the observant Mrs. Sherman cornered him inexorably.

"Tell me, Captain Woodhouse," she began, in her friendly tones, "you said a while ago the general might mistake you for a spy. Don't you have a great deal of trouble with spies in your army in war time? Everybody took us for spies in Germany, and in France they thought poor Henry was carrying bombs to blow up the Eiffel Tower."

"Perhaps I can answer that question better than Captain Woodhouse," the General put in, rising and striding over to where Mrs. Sherman kept the captain prisoner. "Captain Woodhouse, you see, would not be so likely to come in touch with those troublesome persons as one in command of a post like myself." The most delicate irony barbed this speech, lost to all but the one for whom it was meant.

"Oh, I know I'm going to hear something very exciting," Mrs. Sherman chortled. "Kitty, you'd better hush up Willy Kimball for a while and come over here. You can improve your mind better listening to the General."

Crandall soon was the centre of a group. He began, with sober directness.

"Well, in the matter of spies in war time, Mrs. Sherman, one is struck by the fact of their resemblance to the plague—you never can tell when they're going to get you or whence they came. Now here on th Rock I have reason to believe we have one or more spies busy this minute."

CHAPTER XLVII.
A Knife Passes

JANE GERSON, sitting where the light smote her face, drew back into the shadow with a swift movement of protectiveness. Woodhouse, who balanced a dainty Satsuma coffee cup on his knee, kept his eyes on his superior's face with a mildly interested air.

"In fact," Crandall continued evenly, "I shouldn't be surprised if one—possibly two spies—should be arrested before the night is over. And the point about this that will interest you ladies is that one of these—the one whose order for arrest I have already given—is a woman—a very clever and pretty woman, I may add, to make the story more interesting."

"And the other, whose arrest may follow, is an accomplice; of hers, I take it, General!" Woodhouse put the question with easy indifference. He was stirring his coffee abstractedly.

"Not only the accomplice, but the brains for both, Captain. A deucedly clever person, I'm frank to admit."

"Oh, people! Come and see the flagship, signaling to the rest of the fleet with its funny green and red lights!" It was Jane who had suddenly risen and stood by the curtains screening the balcony windows. "They look like little flowers opening and shutting."

The girl's diversion was sufficient to take interest momentarily from General Crandall's revelation. When all had clustered around the windows, conversation skipped to the fleet, its power, and the men who were ready to do battle behind its hundreds of guns.

Mrs. Sherman was disappointed that the ships did not send up rockets. She'd read somewhere that ships sent up rockets, and she didn't see why these should prove the exception. Interruption came from Jaimihr Khan, who bore a message for Consul Reynolds. The fussy little man ripped open the envelope with an air of importance.

"Ah, listen, folks! Here we have the latest wireless from the Saxonia. 'Will anchor about two—sail six.'" Excited gurgles from the refugees. "That means," Reynolds wound up, with a flourish, "everybody at the docks by 5 o'clock. Be there myself, to see you off. Must go now—lot of fuss and feathers getting everybody fixed." He paused before Jane.

"You're going home at last, young lady," he chirped.

"That depends entirely on Miss Gerson herself." It was the general who spoke quietly but emphatically.

Reynolds looked at him, surprised.

"Why, I understand it was all arranged——"

"I repeat, it depends entirely on Miss Gerson."

Woodhouse caught the look of fear in Jane's eyes, and, as they fell for the instant on his, something else—appeal. He turned his head quickly. Lady Crandall saved the situation.

"Oh, that's just some more of George's red tape. I'll snip it when the time comes."

Who Else Was To Be Taken?

The consul's departure was the signal for the others. They crowded around Lady Crandall and her husband with voluble praise for the American dinner and thanks for the courtesy they had found on the Rock. Woodhouse, after a last despairing effort to have a word of farewell with Jane, which she denied, turned to make his adieu to his host and hostess.

"No hurry, Captain," Crandall caught him up. "Expect Major Bishop in every minute—small matter of official detail. You and he can go down the Rock together when he leaves."

Woodhouse's mind leaped to the meaning behind his superior's careless words. The hastily dispatched note—that was to summon Bishop to Government House; Crandall's speech about two spies and the arrest of one of them—Louisa, he meant—and now this summary order that he wait the arrival of Bishop—would the second arrest be here in this room?

The man who carried a number from the Wilhelmstrasse felt the walls of the library slowly closing in to crush him; he could almost hear the whisper and mutter of the inexorable machine moving them closer—closer. Be alone with the man whose word could send bullets into his heart!

"A very pleasant dinner—Lady Crandall's," Woodhouse began, eager to lighten the tenseness of the situation.

"Yes, it seemed so." Crandall offered the younger man his cigarette case, and, lighting a smoke himself, straddled the hearth, his eyes keenly observant of Woodhouse's face.

"Rather odd, Americans. But jolly nice." The captain laughed in reminiscence of the unspoiled Shermans.

"I thought so—I married one," Crandall retorted.

The ear of Woodhouse's mind could hear more plainly now the grinding of the cogs; the immutable power of fate lay there.

"Oh—er—so you did. Very kind she has been to me. I got very little of this sort of thing at Wady Halfa."

"By the way, Woodhouse"—Crandall blew a contemplative puff toward the ceiling — "strange Mrs. Sherman should have thought she saw you at Berlin."

"Odd mistake, to be sure," Woodhouse admitted, struggling to put ease into his voice. "The lady seems to have a penchant, as her husband says, for finding familiar faces."

"Major Bishop!" Jaimihr Khan announced at the double doors. The major in person followed immediately. His greeting to Woodhouse was constrained.

"Woodhouse will wait for you to go down the Rock with him," Crandall explained to the newcomer. "Captain, excuse us for a minute, while we go into my room and run over a little matter of fleet supplies. Must check up with the fleet before it sails in the morning." Woodhouse bowed his acquiescence and saw the door to the general's room close behind the twain.

He was not long alone. Noiselessly the double doors opened and Jaimihr Khan entered. Woodhouse sprang to meet him where he stood poised for flight just inside the doors.

"The woman's prattle of Berlin——" the Indian whispered.

"Yes, the general's suspicions are all aroused again."

"Listen! I saw the note he sent to Bishop. The major is to set to watch you tonight—all night. A false step and you will be under arrest." Jaimihr's thin face was twisted in wrath. "One man's life will not stand in our way now."

"No," Woodhouse affirmed.

"Success is veree near. When Bishop goes with you down the Rock——"

"Yes, yes! What?"

"The pistol screams, but knife is dumb. Quick, Cap-tain!" With a swift movement of his hand the Indian passed a thin-bladed dirk to the white man. The latter secreted the sheathed weapon in a pocket of his dinner jacket. He nodded understanding.

"One man's life—nothing!" Jaimihr breathed.

"It shall be done," Woodhouse whispered.

The concluding instalment of "Inside the Lines" will appear in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN simultaneously with the beginning of a new serial, "On Trial." The two stories will occupy two whole pages of the Sunday paper. "On Trial" is by Elmer L. Reizenstein. It is the greatest mystery story of the year. The play of that name, recently running in Boston, has thrilled thousands, and the book is intensely interesting from the start. Be sure to read the opening instalment of "On Trial" in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

TO BEGIN MOHR MURDER CASE THIS MONTH

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 4.—Tentative dates for the trial of Mrs. Elizabeth Francis Mohr and the three negroes, George W. Healis, Cecil Victor Brown and Henry Spellman, charged with the murder of Dr. C. Franklin Mohr on the night of August 31, while he was on the way to his Newport villa, have been set for Monday, December 13, and Tuesday, December 28, provided the Attorney-General decides to try them separately. In case it is decided to try them together the case will start December 28.

The motions asking for separate trials, scheduled for argument today, have been postponed till next Saturday.

Assistant Attorney-General Abbott C. Phillips today stated that the prosecution had not yet decided if separate trials would be allowed. In case separate trials are allowed, however, the three negroes will probably be tried first.

"It is our intention to get the trials started before the new year," said Mr. Phillips. "It has been absolutely necessary to postpone the arguments asking for separate trials for reasons we cannot divulge. Hence the postponements."

Stolen Auto Hits Tree and Is Wrecked

A five-passenger automobile, driven at a fast clip along Waverly avenue in Newton, crashed into a tree and was smashed to wreckage. Two men jumped in time to clear the wreck. They ran away. Later the car was identified as belonging to Harold M. King of Allston. The police say that it was stolen.

Seven-Year-old Clifford Mercier

Read His Story

During a recent interview, Mr. Joseph Mercier, of 253 Walker street, Lowell, Mass., said to the writer: "My little boy, Clifford, seven years old, has taken Father John's Medicine whenever he had a cold or cough, ever since he was two years old, and it has never failed to give good results. He used to cough badly at night and he does not do it when we give him Father John's Medicine. We believe that Father John's Medicine gives him increased weight and strength. We strongly recommend Father John's Medicine to mothers of children who are weak and run down."

Suffer No Longer from Indigestion

Do something for it, before it gets worse. Don't let it become chronic. The longer that it hangs on, the harder it is to shake off. This trouble will not right itself. It should be corrected; it may develop more serious results if it isn't attended to.

You can get rid of your indigestion quickly and easily by promptly taking a reliable family remedy for the stomach, liver, bile and blood. They are a helpful combination of medicinal herbs which start the gastric juices, help the process of assimilation, and carry off the impurities that clog the system and threaten to create disease.

OLD AGE A CRIME!

Some people are young at 60—red-cheeked, ruddy and vigorous. Others are old at 40—joints beginning to stiffen up a bit; step beginning to lag and lose its springiness, occasional touches of pain in the back, feel tired without cause, and possibly a twinge of rheumatic pain.

In most cases these are the danger signals to warn you that the kidneys are not promptly doing their work of throwing off the poisons that are always forming in the body. To neglect these natural warnings is a crime against yourself. If you have these symptoms you can find prompt relief in GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. For more than 200 years this has been the recognized remedy for kidney and bladder ailments.

GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are imported direct from the laboratories at Haarlem, Holland. Prices are 25c, 50c and $1.00. Get them at your druggist's. Do not take a substitute.

Getting Good Help Easy? An American Want-Ad Will Do It!

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS GIVING EARLY, BASKET EDITOR SAYS

Do your Christmas Giving Early!

The Christmas Basket Editor believes he has in many ways the cheerfulest sort of a job these days.

His mail is as full of surprises as a plum pudding is of raisins.

Sometimes the surprises are in the shape of fat checks; and then he thrills with delight at thought of all the Christmas dinners those checks will buy.

Sometimes the surprises are in the shape of pennies or nickles or dimes, arduously hoarded by little boys and girls and contributed to the general fund of happiness; and then the Christmas Basket Editor thrills to think what good-hearted little boys and girls there are in the world, to be sure.

Sometimes the surprises are in the shape of pitiful little appeals from those who would otherwise have no Christmas dinner, for one of the baskets to be distributed by the AMERICAN and to be filled with good things bought with the money YOU, good friends, have contributed; and then the Christmas Basket Editor has a little nudge of joy at thinking how happy their dinner basket is to make the family from which that appealing letter came.

Here—just to keep you all reminded that the need is great and is ever with us—are four of the letters that have been received:

Dear Editor: I would like to be remembered with a basket at Christmas. I am poor, and a widow, and in poor health. I am sixty-six years old.

And here is the second:

Dear Editor: My husband is an old soldier, not able to work, and I am laid up with rheumatism and not able to work. I will feel very grateful if you can send me something.

Still a third:

Dear Basket Editor: My mother is working hard, and father is out of work. I do not want my mother to be sorrowful at Christmas, and I thought that you would help us. Please don't forget us. There are seven in the family.

The fund grows steadily.

But it can never be too big; for the hungry of Boston are more numerous than you well-fed folk would believe if you were told.

The Sunshine Family Waiting to Greet Papa, Who Arrives Tomorrow

Paper Doll Cut-Out for the Kiddies

Papa George Washington Sunshine, father of the celebrated family of paper doll cut-outs, arrives from the Land of Make-believe to join Mama, Peter, Martha and Baby Bob.

Mr. Sunshine brings a sunny secret with him, to whisper to every boy and girl whose Papa buys the Sunday American.

A New Serial Story

We feel you'll be glad to hear that the Sunday American's next serial is "On Trial." As a play "On Trial" has met with great favor. It has been the dramatic sensation of the year. The book is better than the play. It is the greatest mystery story of the year. The whole book will be printed in fourteen installments in the Sunday and daily American, beginning tomorrow.

Especially for the Women

Have you noticed the Sunday American's HOME PAGE? We feel that "Mother" will enjoy it. It contains an uplifting article from the gifted pen of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and an enlightening contribution from Dorothy Dix. Beatrice Fairfax gives advice to the Lovelorn, and Sunday American readers from all over New England contribute to the columns of cooking recipes. This week there are some suggestions for Christmas.

Also of interest to the faminine members of the family is the FASHION PAGE, which contains the latest information of dress importance, and many suggestions as to milady's toilette.

Articles by Famous Writers

won his fame with his stories of army life. In his new series, which he is now writing for the Boston American and which concern life in the British Navy under war conditions, it does seem he has excelled his previous efforts. Tomorrow's story concerns the fleet of fast-going destroyers and other patrol ships which are guarding the British shores from hostile fleets.

Julian Hawthorne

has written for tomorrow's paper a story which concerns his illustrious father, Nathaniel Hawthorne, the Poet Longfellow and, incidentally, a distinguished personage of our own day, Henry Cabot Lodge.

Gouverneur Morris

the famous novelist and short-story writer, has been on the battle front in France as a representative of the Sunday American. In tomorrow's article he recounts his sensations when he reached the actual FIRST LINE OF TRENCHES and was under fire from the German trenches, hardly a dozen yards away. He describes the experience as few would be able to do.

Here's Papa Sunshine

We Wish to Call Your Special Attention to Our Pages of Social News

Several pages of the Sunday American are devoted to Society news, official announcements of the Women's Clubs, and many columns of news concerning Greater Boston Social Circles, Church Events, and Notes of Fraternal Orders. These pages are illustrated with photographs of women and girls prominent in the social events of the week.

Bound Monthly Magazine of Fiction

The first Sunday of the month means the appearance of the Sunday American Monthly Magazine of 20 pages. Every purchaser of the Sunday American is entitled to a copy of the Magazine without extra charge.

And let us mention that we think it is particularly good this month. In the leading story the hero is a Harvard man, and he passes through a thrilling battle for life while posing in the "movies" in the Heart of Africa. The story is by Donn Byrne and it is called "Fantee."

Another short fiction story is "The Crown" and is by Josephine A. Meyer. It is of particular "heart-interest," as they say of the movies. It is a story such as women will understand. "The Sheltering Tree," by F. Tennyson Jesse, is another story of more than ordinary merit. It concerns the friendship and sacrifices of two girls.

EVERETT MAKES GREAT STAND AT DETROIT

the ball went over on downs, Captain Johnson failing to gain on a silent signal play.

Loving failed to gain on a wide end run. Moegle made three yards around right end. Brenkert punted to midfield, where Marshall was downed in his tracks by Boville.

Green ran the ball back to Central's 25-yard line, circling his right end. Bradley made three yards through tackle and added three more on the other side of the line. The next attempt was good for first down. Green failed to gain through centre.

Marshall made two yards off tackle. Peacock broke through and grabbed Johnson for no gain. Marshall failed, and the ball was Detroit's on downs. Moegle failed to gain.

Time was taken out for Pontefract, who remained in the game. Hendrian failed to gain. Loving broke through and planted the ball on Central's 40-yard line on a long dodging sprint down field. Brenkert added seven.

Everett recovered Moegle's fumble on their own 40-yard line. Marshall failed to gain and Everett was penalized 15 yards for holding.

EVERETT STOPS ONRUSH.

Karl Johnson failed to gain on a tackle around play. Fitzgerald made a yard around end. Green made a yard around end. Green punted to Loving, who returned the ball to Everett's 42-yard line.

Loving made four yards off tackle on a shift play. Moegle took the ball to Everett's 30-yard line on a cross-buck, but Central was penalized 15 yards for holding. Loving was stopped in midfield. A forward pass, Loving to Moegle, failed. The quarter ended with the ball in Central's possession in midfield. Detroit Central, 0; Everett, 0.

SECOND PERIOD.

Brenkert punted poorly and the ball was Everett's on its own 35-yard line. Plunges by Marshall and Bradley made first down. Everett was held. Green punted to Loving, who was downed on his own 35-yard line.

Brenkert made five yards around end. Time was taken out for Silva, who injured his ankle and left the game. Sawyer replaced Silva at left end.

Loving plunged through for five yards. Moegle made first down on Central's 45-yard line. Moegle failed to gain. Loving gained five yards. Moegle added a yard around end.

Hendrian failed to make first down and the ball was Everett's on its 45-yard line. Straw was offside and his play cost Central five yards. Marshall failed to gain.

Green made eight yards off tackle, and then added one. His next attempt failed of first down by inches, and it was Central's ball on Detroit's 40-yard line. Moegle made a yard. Brenkert punted and the ball rolled across the goal line.

The ball was put in play on Everett's 20-yard line. Fitzgerald made 12 yards on a nice end run.

MARSHALL FAILS TO GAIN.

Marshall failed to gain through centre. Green gained five yards around end. Green punted to Loving on his 35-yard line. The Detroiter ran back the ball twelve yards. Hendrian plunged through centre for four yards. Brenkert added two through centre. Loving made four through centre. Loving made first down on Everett's 40-yard line.

Moegle made nine yards through tackle. Moegle made first down on Everett's 20-yard line. J. Johnson replaced Davidson. A forward pass, Loving to Boville, made it first down on Everett's ten-yard line. Everett made a great stand in the shadow of its own goal posts.

Two line plunges failed to gain. A forward pass was incomplete. Loving wide end run was stopped and Everett secured the ball on downs on their five-yard line.

Green punted and Moegle was downed on Everett's 30-yard line. Loving gained six yards around end.

The half ended with the ball in Centrals possession on Everett's 24-yard line. Score—Everett, 0; Detroit Central, 0.

THIRD PERIOD.

Trowbridge caught Central's kick-off and was downed on his 40-yard line. Green was thrown for a 10-yard loss and then punted out of bounds. The ball was put in play on Central's 40-yard line.

Plunges by Loving and Hendrian made first down in midfield. Moegle made a yard. Hendroan added two through centre. Central's forward pass was grounded. Brenkert punted over the goal line and the ball was put in play on Everett's 20-yard line.

Karl Johnson and Fitzgerald failed to gain. Everett was penalized five yards for offside. Green punted to Loving in midfield. The Detroiter was downed on Everett's 30-yard line. Moegle gained four yards off tackle. Hendrian made first down on Everett's 20-yard line. Moegle made four yards off tackle.

Loving made first down on a line plunge. Everett's line again began to hold, stopping three line plunges. A shift play failed and it was Everett's ball on their own 10-yard line. Green punted to Loving, who was downed on Everett's 40-yard line.

Loving failed to gain, Loving made four yards around end, Moegle made first down for Central by a line plunge. Palmer replaced Holton at right guard. Moegle made a yard.

A forward pass, Loving to Boville, put the ball on Everett's 10-yard line. Loving gained three yards.

EVERETT INTERCEPTS PASS.

Brenkert failed to gain. Loving added a yard. Moegle failed to gain. It was Everett's ball again on downs. Green punted to Loving, who was downed on Everett's 30-yard line. Hendrian failed to gain.

A forward pass, Loving to Boville, gained eight yards. Loving made first down on Everett's 10-yard line. Hendrian made a yard. Hendrian again failed to gain.

Time was taken out for H. Bond. A forward pass was intercepted by Bradley on his 5-yard line. Bradley failed to gain. Green kicked to Loving, who was downed on Everett's 40-yard line. There the quarter ended. Score—Everett, 0; Detroit Central 0.

GARRY IN "PEACE" ROLE
O. B. STILL IN TRENCHES

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

Someone is trying to put Garry Herrmann in the role of the Dove of Peace, and would have this diplomatic gentleman exercise his skill in settling the baseball situation.

This "someone" is a writer on a paper in E. Garry's home town and picks him as the one man who can do it. It is my opinion that Henry Ford's Peace Ark's mission has about as much chance to settle the European struggle as would E. Garry, should he follow the advice of this gentleman.

The trenches which mar the landscape of Europe are quiet spots compared to the meeting room in the Waldorf-Astoria, should this plan be presented. Any effort to have peace with the Feds would be as welcome to certain members of the National League as would a leper. And these members mean to have it very well understood.

SHOULD IGNORE THEM.

There is only one way to fight the Federals, and that is to ignore them. Too much attention has been paid them as it is. Their strength is in the amount of material they get into the papers, not the number of persons who tick off their turnstiles.

That is a fact that will be established. If the Federal League wishes to pay fabulous salaries there is no law in the land to prevent them from separating themselves from their bank roll.

Organized baseball is just now struggling to devise ways and means to fatten its bank account, and I don't believe any organized baseball will enter into any great competition to retain players who may at this time or at any future time flirt with the "Feds."

THE ONLY WAY OUT OF IT.

For several seasons clubs have found that their receipts were very much smaller than their expenses. In these expenses the item of salaries has figured to such an extent that, as is well known, figures in contracts will be much lighter.

It is evident that club owners figure they cannot lessen their expenses in operation, for it costs just so much to take a club around the circuit. That is established. The only chance to retrench is in salaries, and perhaps a little cut in maintenance.

If under conditions in the past little if any money has been made, where are the clubs in organized baseball going to get off if they enter into further competition, bidding like mad at the beck and call of the Feds?

Stars are great things to have in ball clubs, but stars when they get to the point of demanding all there is in it will find that the men who take the risk very naturally require a little return.

It seems sensible that men who have their money invested in ball clubs, with expensive plants, should view the salary proposition first and the Feds least of all.

Organized baseball is on a firm footing. But it cannot proceed under extravagant expenditures. If this is true, where has the Federal League a chance to step in, playing in cities where there has been little if any interest in their efforts.

It would be a fine thing for the Feds to be taken in, but just now it doesn't look as if even E. Garry Herrmann, should he attempt to bring about the topic of peace, succeed in anything but stirring up war in his own league. Dove of Peace? "There ain't any such animal."

A SIGNIFICANT POINT.

One significant point in the statement in the "Peace Mission" was that the article was printed in the Cincinnati Times-Star, which is owned by Charles P. Taft, who also owns the Chicago Cubs.

Garry Herrmann has never been strong for the olive branch, nor can he be said to follow in W. J. Bryan's footsteps. Where there has been trouble he has been in the thick of the fray, fighting to the end. He may have listened to what the leaders of the Feds had to propose. There have been several conferences; but that doesn't mean anything, not with Barney Dreyfuss, battling them like a champion, and other owners taking the same position.

While nothing of an alarming character is expected to result from any peace movement, still it is certain that, should any such proposition be presented for serious consideration, it will not look like a peace conference, more like a county fair with the rough-house in full blast.

CONCERTED ACTION NECESSARY.

Organized baseball has withstood the inroads upon their players, with no noticeable decrease in the attendance at the World's Series, which is a pulse worth considering.

Baseball can be put upon a business basis and at the annual meeting, to be held in New York, December 14, much talk along this line is sure to be made. Concerted action is necessary to accomplish any big results.

Fans follow the news and are the ones to pay the freight. To admit the Feds at this time would be an admission of weakness and operate against baseball. It looks as if the principal trouble ahead of club owners is the signing of players at figures submitted.

Malden High and Revere High meet in a post-season battle on the Malden gridiron this afternoon.

The game scheduled between the two teams early in the season was called off owing to stormy weather, and, not until the season closed and Malden was defeated by the narrowest of margins by its old rival, Medford, was a thought given to playing Revere.

Medford and Revere clashed in a 7 to 7 tie. Malden believes that defeating Revere would tend to prove its assertion that Medford won the Turkey Day game on the fluke. A big crowd is loked for at the game.

Brown Hard at It for Far West Trip

PROVIDENCE Dec. 4.—Head Coach Robinson states that the Brown squad will be at its best by the time it starts for California to keep its New Year's date with Washington State College. Pasadena will be the scene of the contest.

Robinson is devoting three afternoons of each week to scrimmage and will keep the arrangement going until it comes time to leave for the coast with the warriors. The varsity team is physically sound from top to bottom.

Tommy Murphy Has Tough Luck in Ring

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—"Harlem Tommy" Murphy, the veteran lightweight, suffered a fractured arm in his bout with Pete Hartley at the East New York A. C. last night. A fall from the ring resulted in a sudden termination of the contest in the third round, and Murphy was unable to continue.

CHIP'S FOE CAN HIT WITH THE BEST OF 'EM

Jeff Smith's remarkable ring record, the winner of forty of his fifty-three bouts and a loser in only three, has caused Boston boxing lovers to sit up and take notice, as the whirlwind middleweight will make his first local appearance at the opening show of the new Armory A. A. at the Hippodrome next Tuesday night.

Outside of losing the decision to Eddie McGoorty, a verdict which was universally condemned and criticised, Jeff only lost to Georges Carpentier, the Parisian idol. His other reverse came when he lost on a foul to Les Darcy, the Australian star, whom he previously bested.

Smith is one of the claimants for the world's middleweight title; in fact, looms up as the most logical aspirant for the title, as he has beaten Jimmy Clabby, as well as the champions of France, Ireland and the two champions of the Land of the Kangaroo.

Jeff is almost sure to prove a big hit, as of his forty victories twenty came via the K. O. route.

George Chip, the Newcastle, Pa., biffer, whom Smith will face, is no mean opponent. Chip twice sent the hard-hitting Frank Klaus to the floor for the count of ten and has battered down a lot of the topliners. He, too, will make his first appearance in Boston at the reopening of the Triple A. at the Hippodrome.

This will be the first middleweight bout here in some time. Certainly it looks like a great drawing card and more than one "fan" has expressed himself very well pleased over the match made for the first show in the new clubhouse. The battle will be fought at the middleweight limit, 158 pounds.

in two more Herron made it first down. De Paul was penalized five yards for offside play.

TRY FOR GOAL FAILS.

On the next rush Beverly lost a yard. West immediately made ten yards outside right tackle and O'Donnell went through centre for a first down. Curran skirted right end for fifty yards and Toomey made two more on a tackle around play. Robertson made two yards on a centre buck and O'Donnell three more at left tackle. A forward pass, Herron to O'Donnell, was incompleted.

Herron's try for a field goal was blocked and De Paul secured the ball on their 30-yard line. Two rushes netted five yards.

The next play netted five yards, and a third a yard more at left end. A lateral pass, Pond to Hamilton, netted fifteen yards and a first down. Another lateral gave four more, but De Paul was penalized for offside play.

Toomey threw Grundeman for a three-yard loss, and another attempt failed. Pond kicked to Herron, who ran back ten yards before he was forced outside.

Beverly lost a yard at left tackle and failed to gain on the next rush. A forward pass, Herron to O'Donnell, netted six yards. Herron's kick was blocked, Pond recovering it as the first period ended with the ball in midfield.

Score—Beverly 0, De Paul 0.

Jimmy Coffroth Out to Stage the Lightweight Bout

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The Lower California Jockey Club of Tia Juana, Mexico, backed by Jimmy Coffroth, it is understood, has the inside track in landing the lightweight championship match involving Freddie Welsh and Charlie White. For some mysterious reason the Denver folks have been passed up completely, it is thought here, and Tia Juana given the entire preference.

Le Gore and Co. to Win Point, Is the Forecast

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The conference of the representatives of Harvard, Princeton and Yale at the Yale Club last night, called to effect a common agreement on the rules covering the eligibility of athletes engaged in intercollegiate competition, ended without anything at all important being determined, it was announced.

The solons are to meet again today when it is expected some sort of a definite conclusion will be reached.

Yale is expected to ask for a vote on the question of reinstating Harry Le Gore, R. H. Rett, Jr., William Easton, Spencer Pompelly and Captain Milburn of the Yale baseball team, who were disqualified for accepting free meals while playing Summer baseball.

It is reported that the committee will recommend that the Eli athletes be declared eligible.

De Oro Totals 50 Points in 35 Innings; Record

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Alfredo De Oro, the world's three-cushion champion, broke all records in the second block of his 150-point match with August Kieckhefer of Milwaukee for the title last night, when he ran out his string of 50 points in 35 innings.

The previous record was 36 innings for the 50 points, made by Frank Day of St. Louis in a match with De Oro at St. Louis in 1907.

Kieckhefer scored 35 points in 34 innings and had a high run of 8. De Oro's high run was 6.

Totals for the two blocks: De Oro, 100; Kieckhefer, 63. The final block will be played tonight.

Date for Jack Britton.

Jack Britton and "Kid" Graves will clash in the opening show of the Cleveland A. C. of Cleveland, O., January 7. The bout will be for ten rounds, no decision. Kayo Brown will probably meet Jack Honda, the Western 135-pound amateur champion, on the same card.

ROCQUE TO COACH YALE ELIS GET GREEN TUTOR

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

The announcement that Fred Rocque will coach the Yale hockey team this season, vice Tom Howard, occasioned considerable pleasure among Yale graduates in Boston, who heard of the matter this morning. Rocque had been for several years at Dartmouth and it was due to his exceptional coaching ability that the Green teams proved so adept on the ice.

For more than two years Yale hockey mentors have been striving to secure the services of Rocque, but he would not consider their offers. Two years ago he took the Dartmouth team to New York for a series of games, and all sorts of offers were made him and spurned.

Again this Fall negotiations were taken up and when the announcement was made that Tom Howard would look after the players of the Hockey Club of New York, they were spurned. The former Boston goal will go to New Haven shortly to assume full charge of the Eli puck chasers.

After all, the indications are that Boston stands only a remote chance of being admitted to membership in the Professional Hockey League. Word from Canada has it that the N. H. A. is going ahead with its preparations for a five-team league. Such an arrangement will mean the elimination of Boston and Hamilton, Ont.

The indications are that the N. H. A. season will open December 15, with the second game four days later, and then a layoff until December 29 and the next game after that on January 1.

Whether or not the professional article would interfere with the amateur games which the Arena, B. A. A., Harvard Club and Technology teams will compete in at the Arena remains an open question. There are a great many who think that amateur hockey would have benefited by a professional season here.

Were a beginner to go to the Arena on the night the Canadians and a Boston team were playing they would see an exhibition of the sport which would be bound to attract them to other games. So it is that the amateur game would thrive.

Last night Coach Alfred Winsor of the Harvard squad had the candidates at the Varsity Club for a talkfest. F. D. Huntington, '13, and W. H. Claflin, last year's captain, addressed the candidates. Monday Harvard will have its first practice at puck-shooting in Hemenway Gym. It is probable that the squad will have its initial practice on the ice at the Arena December 13.

Information comes from Canada that the Cleveland, O., amateur team is raiding the Ottawa Valley League for star players. Already three of Buckingham's best players have been corraled. They are "Billy" Cameron and Joe and Lawrence McCormick. Edwin Germon is also expected to go to Cleveland shortly. The addition of these players to the Forest City lineup makes the team stronger. Last year the Arena seven defeated Cleveland after a battle royal.

Today the ordinarily smooth dancing floor at the Arena is covered with a thin coating of ice. By tonight, when the coating has increased a few inches more will be added it. Tomorrow still more water will go on and Monday the rink will be completed. Then will come the scraping, another flooding and by next Friday night the rink will be ready for the skaters and hockeyites.

Manager Lougee was a pleased expression last night when the last of the water had been poured over the pipes. The brine was then flowing through and it wasn't long ere the big building began to chill. This morning it was several degrees cooler Indoors than out on the street.

A meeting of Boston College students will be held Monday to decide on the advisability of having a hockey team this year. There is an abundance of good material on hand. Likely candidates are Jack Connolly, a former Canadian and Arena star; "Dido" Pulvey, Dan McCarthy and "Doc" Fleming, all former B. C. High stars, and several members of the freshman team, including Hagbey, "Babe" Tonry and Ed Brady.

Fifty Milton Academy students are practicing in the basement of the school. They are anxiously awaiting the first signs of ice so they can get down to hard work.

Four Teams Off in N. E. Cross-Country

Promptly at 4 o'clock four teams will get away over the Franklin Park course in the first New England A. A. A. U. cross-country championship event. The Dorchester Club, which recently defeated the Harvard and Tech squads, has entered two teams, while the Irish-American A. A. and Brookline G. A. will also toe the mark. St. Joseph's A. A. is represented by a single starter, J. V. Breslin.

The winning team will have its expenses paid to the National A. A. U. junior cross-country championship in New York next Saturday. The entries are:

Dorchester Club—James Hennan, Clif Horne, Edward Ugo, Albert Hollis, Peter Calihon, Fred Vasle, Fred Faller, Albert Andette, Arthur Roth, Jack Bentley, Allen Conner, Charles Horne, Michael St. Paul, Joseph Curran, Timothy Mahoney and Walter Fallon. Irish-American A. A.—Ray Hynd, Patrick Fallon, Lorenzo Turner, Jerry Wall, A. E. Rathgeb, Walsh and Joe Fallon. Brookline G. A. A.—J. Hagerstat, J. Hughes, C. Sullivan, H. Fras, W. Dorsey, J. McGarry and W. Donovan.

TED LEWIS GETS HUGE SURPRISE IN 'BUSHER'

Is Ted (Kid) Lewis slipping and and was the larroping Londoner beaten in the ring at Dayton, O., last night, thus suffering his second setback of the week?

Mike Glover, the South Boston welterweight, put it over Lewis in their twelve-round fuss at the Arena last Tuesday night. There's no doubt about that; Glover's triumph was emphatic.

Last night Lewis went on with Young Nell, the Allentown, Pa., boxer, at Dayton, O. Reports from there on the outcome of the fifteen-round battle differ.

The referee's verdict went to Lewis. That it was a most unfair ruling—robbing Nell—is claimed by Frank Mantell, the New England middleweight, who saw the fight. Ha wired the AMERICAN as follows:

Ted Lewis got the decision over Young Nell here last night after fighting fifteen hard rounds. Nell punished the Englishman all the way and was robbed. The majority of the "fans" were of the opinion that Nell should have had no less than a draw.

Wills Is Too Fast for Sam Langford

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Harry Wills, the lanky New Orleans negro, won easily on points from Sam Langford, the Boston tar baby, in their ten-round bout at the Harlem Sporting Club last night. The long-armed darky had the veteran worried over the whole route. It was a vicious battle. Marty Cross defeated "Kid" Herman in the semi-final event.

Spears May Be Lost to Big Green Team

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 4.—It is strongly rumored here that Spears, Dartmouth's crack guard, will be ineligible to play on the 1916 eleven on account of having played varsity football at Knox College, Illinois, three years ago. Spears has been the Green's line mainstay the past two seasons and his loss will be keenly felt.

BOXING BRIEFS and GOSSIP

THERE'S everything to indicate that the new Armory A. A. has built a corking good match to start the ball going at the Hippodrome next Tuesday night.

JEFF SMITH vs. George Chip; weight 158 pounds. It should be some mad melee; a slam-bang slugging set-to. Both boys are wallopers pure and simple. At that, Smith is also fairly scientific. As for Chip, slugging is all he knows.

JEFF SMITH, though Al Lipp's literature has him a native of New York, is billed as hailing from Bayonne, N. J. That's where he holds forth; his adopted home town.

SMITH has been showing in foreign rings of late months. Sydney and Melbourne have been the scene of most of Jeff's recent battling and down in Kangarooland he's rated a star of the first magnitude.

SMITH has a knockout to his credit over Lea Darcy, Australia's middleweight champion, same coming in the fifth canto. It happened January 23 last. In May Jeff lost to Les on a foul in the second round.

MICK KING and Harold Hardwick are two great Australian ring favorites. The Lippe entrant whaled both of them while abroad.

SMITH likewise bested Adrian Hogan and George Bernard when in France, while in a twenty-rounder with Georges Carpentier, now a soldier laddie, he was returned a loser.

YOUNG JASPER, slated over Eli knockout win over Joe White, has signed to meet Eddie Flynn of Lynn, at Rockland, Me., December 10. Promoter George Araia, in Boston yesterday, booked the match.

YOUNG JASPER whispers the info that Jack McGuigan wants him in Philadelphia, while Johnny Wisemantel is just crazy for him to come to Brooklyn. Nothing doing, says Y. J., until after he gets through with Flynn.

DAN McDONALD, the Roxbury 158-pounder and member of Hector McInnis' stable, is down to meet Johnny Howard at Pittsfield at an early date.

"HONEY" MELODY states that his delayed bender will take place either December 13 or 20. The program bids fair to be a corker, as "Honey's" friends are anxious to secure a bankroll for him.

EDDIE MACK has booked a corking good show for next Friday night at Gloucester. Steve Kennedy of Lawrence and Al Thomas of England, will meet in the big number, a twelve-rounder. Karel Herin and Young Joe Rivers will hook up in the semi-wind-up.

"BILLY" SWEENEY has added Johnny O'Connell, the South Boston 118-pounder, to his string. Young Drea, Tommy O'Brien and Frankie Cotter are the other Best Belts in Sweeney's stable.

Ring Results

BUFFALO, Dec. 4.—Knockout Brennan of Buffalo had all the better of Soldier Bartfield of New York in their ten-round bout at the Queensberry Club.

CORNING, N. Y. Dec. 4.—Carter of Buffalo outpointed Tommy Maloney in their ten-round boxing bout here.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—Harry Stone of New York defeated Young Denny of New Orleans in their 15-round bout here at the auditorium last night.

WILLIE RITCHIE AND WELSH

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Another championship match is being sought by Jack Curley and Tom Jones, representatives of the Buenos Ayres Club. It is to be for the world's welterweight title.

It was only a few weeks ago that Ted Lewis, the English wizard, posted $1,000 as a forfeit to defend the welterweight crown and hurled a defi at Willie Ritchie. Ritchie agreed to the match, and the only obstacle was the staging of the contest.

Curley and Jones have added this match to their program, and if the fighters are agreeable, they will battle for the welterweight crown down in South America.

Willie Ritchie dropped into the offices of Curley and Jones to discuss the possibility of another fight with Freddie Welsh for the lightweight title. The former champion declared he would make 135 pounds at 2 o'clock for Welsh, but as for Welsh's demand of $25,000 he wouldn't take that gamble on his shoulders.

Ritchie added that Welsh could obtain $15,000 in Denver if he cared to defend his title from the owner. Welsh knew about this offer some time ago, said Willie, but declined to accept.

Millstreams Hook Up with Neponsets

The well press-agented Millstream A. A. eleven clashes with the Neponset Wonderers on the South End Grounds this afternoon in a game which will go a long way towards settling the independent championship of New England. The claim is made that neither team has lost a game this season. Both elevens will line up with all their star warriors and a battle royal is carded to ensue.

Brockton vs. Tyrino, Brockton.

General Electrics vs. New Bedford Celtics, Ocean Park, Lynn.

Fore River vs. Chicopee Rovers, Fore River.

St. George's vs. Lynn Fosse, Glendale Park, Everett.

All kick-offs at 2:30 p. m.

CHICOPEE ROVERS and Fore River have played three tie games this season. Hence, today's battle can be relied upon being stiffly contested.

GENERAL ELECTRICS played the Celtics to a 0-0 tie last Saturday. The winner of today's game moves into the third round in the National Cup series.

ST. GEORGE is the only local team left in the State Cup series. A defeat today will leave Greater Boston outside of both the National and State cups.

LYNN FOSSE holds the advantage over most teams on their home grounds, as Glendale Park presents the best field in Massachusetts. Teams that win there generally do so on their merits. Seldom is any luck attached to a victory.

THE RABBIT'S COLUMN

By Walter J. Maranville
SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

Here's hoping Everett comes through today 6ut in Detroit! The boys have had a wonderful season and look strong enough to be able to return with a victory. Still one fault I noticed in the reports of the game with Waltham will have to be remedied, that of fumbling. With a wet field and a wet ball this is apt to figure again. However, I am for the Everett boys, first, last and all the time.

It would not surprise me if President "Barney" Dreyfuss named Honus Wagner as manager of the Pirates for 1916. Wagner has been a remarkable player all his life, and should become a good leader. We shortstops must stick together, you know.

While Honus is not strong on the interview proposition, when he does say anything about the game it is listened to with attention, for all realize that he knows what he is talking about. I am of the opinion that he can instruct. The first requisite of a manager is to win and hold the respect of his men. Honus has that now, which is a valuable asset.

I see that Ed Cicotte has signed another contract with the Chifeds. This player was slated to come to the Braves, and had he done so, would have proven a big help. Ed is some ball player, from his record, and aside from that, Boss George had picked him, so that put the O. K. on him from the start.

President Herrmann is pleased with the reports he received recently from Fritz Mollwitz, his big first sacker. "Moll's" injury is not as serious as first reported and he will be ready when the ball rings for practice.

Fine chance for the Feds to get Hughie Jennings. Why don't they claim to have signed up Cobb? It would be an old story, but the Tigers would listen. Anything goes in the Winter time.

Speaking of natural ball players reminds me that Duffy Lewis of the Red Sox comes under that heading. Duffy loves the game, has a great eye and can slam that ball. His mother is right when she says that her son was a born ball player. You all remember his work in the World's Series. "Duff" is dangerous all the time.

Mp for the above training schedule this time," says Hughie Jennings. "A team can get into physical condition in four weeks as easily as in six." This but adds to what I said some time ago, about the long Spring training idea. I am sure that the tendency among club owners is to get down to business right away and one move will be the curtailing on training expenses.

BANQUET GIVEN HUNTINGTON ELEVEN

In Bates Hall at the Boston Y. M. C. A. building the football eleven of Huntington School was banqueted last night with more than 200 persons present. Chief among the guests were Ernest Bonzy, the end, and Harry Dadmun, the guard of this year's victorious Harvard eleven.

Arthur W. Hale was toastmaster and introduced the speakers, who were, in addition to Bonzy and Dadmun, Captain Parks of Tufts, Captain Rice and Captain-elect Hagan of Huntington, Robert Starbuck, Coach Lamb, Principal Flinner and J. H. Taylor of the faculty.

The tables were artistically decorated to represent a football gridiron and there was an exhibition of moving pictures of the Harvard-Yale football game. During the course of the evening it was announced that Huntington intends going into athletics extensively henceforth.

JOHNSON HELD LEADER IN TENNIS

In local tennis circles this morning the impression is prevalent that the ranking committee, which completed its work last night, has allotted the leading position to William M. Johnston of California, the national champion. The committee has ranked 100 men, but as yet they have not made public the result of its labors.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt has been placed at the head of the list of twenty-five women players who were considered. It is expected that the ranking lists will be made public either tonight or tomorrow.

A radical departure has been decided upon by the association, and at the annual meeting an amendment to the constitution will be offered which allows the associations of players using the public courts admission to membership in the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

The task of drawing this amendment has been given to Palmer E. Pressbrey of the Longwood Cricket Club, but illness prevented his attending the present meeting and doing so. However the amendment will surely be presented at the February meeting.

Going to Hire Horses This Christmas?

If you do so let it be the last year you allow this. There's a better way.

Look at the street congestion at Christmas time. The horse "gets in his own way." He is weakest just when rush work demands he be strongest. Snow, rain, icy pavements, long hours—all these make him inefficient when things are at concert pitch.

Ever think of "Trucking by Electricity"? It's great stuff. Nearly 5000 G. V. Electrics already used by 900 firms.

And the Battery Service System—that new plan which allows you to buy mileage rather than current and the other incidentals—is a great, far-reaching achievement.

Reduces your initial truck investment 25% too.

Anita Stewart's Talks to Girls

No. 4—Every Girl Should Learn a Trade

By Anita Stewart

Whose Wonderful Work in "The Goddess" and "The Million Dollar Mid" Was the Sensation of the Moving Picture World.

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service

MY mother—my wise, far-seeing mother—began when I was a little girl to prepare me to be self-supporting. I had a very sweet, strong, high soprano voice, and it was intended in those days that I should be a singer, but chance opened the door of a moving picture studio to me. I made good, and my fate was changed.

But how I make my living is a mere detail. The main point is that my mother did not trust my future to luck, as is the common way with parents with their girls, although they are careful enough to try to safeguard their boys.

My mother didn't say, "Anita is pretty, she'll be sure to marry and live happily ever afterward."

She said, "Perhaps Anita may marry. Perhaps she may not marry. Perhaps, if she does marry, her husband may turn out to be a poor business man, who has no faculty for making money, or he may become an invalid, or die, and leave me with children, and she may need to know how to make money a hundred times more desperately than any single woman ever does.

"I've seen all these calamities happen over and over again, and I don't want my daughter to be one of those helpless, futile women who have never made a dollar, and couldn't make a dollar to save their lives if they were thrown out on their own resources."

EVERY GIRL SHOULD BE TAUGHT A PROFESSION

That's the way my mother looked at the subject, and if every other mother took the same line it would save a lot of useless misery and suffering, for it's the unpreparedness of girls for life that makes so many of them make such a mess of it.

If every girl was taught some trade or profession by which she could support herself it would do away with nearly all of the unhappy marriages.

Then a girl could wait until the man she wanted for a husband came along, instead of having to take the first man who looks like a good meal ticket, because her family show her that they think that they have supported her long enough, and that she ought to get out of the way of her younger sisters.

The girl with her own pay envelope doesn't have to marry for a home, but has dependent girl doesn't only too often.

The girl who has a good trade is treated better by her husband, too. Do you know why so many wives stand for drunkenness, unfaithfulness and brutality from their husbands? It's because they have no way of making a living for themselves. They've never been taught how to earn a cent, and it's a choice between being abused or starving with them.

But the woman with a good profession at her fingers' ends simply serves notice on her husband that if he doesn't treat her right she'll go back to her old job, and you are going to find out that when every woman is self supporting there is going to be the greatest reformation the world has ever known in the conduct of husbands.

GIVES GIRL SENSE OF INDEPENDENCE

And it gives a girl such a sense of independence and dignity to know that she can stand on her own two little feet, and doesn't have to be a flopping vine hanging all the time on nearest support. It makes her feel that she's a human being and some account in the world, and that is about as soul satisfying an emotion as we ever get.

So I say, girls, get busy. Go to work. Learn how to do some one thing well enough to make a living by it. And this goes whether you are rich or poor, for no one knows what sort of luck is waiting to flown the road.

A photograph of Anita Stewart showing her sweetness and charm.

A good trade is a strong crutch to lean on if you need it, and if you never need it it is a comfortable thought to know that you've got it in reserve. It's just like having money in the bank.

The Wonderful Adventures of the Sunshine Family in the Land of Make-Believe

Copyright, 1915, New England Newspaper Publishing Company

By GEORGE WASHINGTON SUNSHINE

Copyright, 1915, New England Newspaper Publishing Company

AND now comes the last chapter of all.

It will be the hardest chapter to write.

For five weeks I have been telling you of my experiences here. Every evening, I suppose, Mamma (or perhaps Papa) has been reading this story to you.

I have often pictured you together, in the evening, and have wished that I might drop in on you in person, to TELL you these things and others even more wonderful. It is much harder to write than to TELL things. Don't you think so?

Often I have seen things WORTH the telling, in my journeys about the Wonderful Land of Make Believe, and have said to myself "there is something to tell the children about; there is something to relate in a Letter to the AMERICAN," and then, when the time came to get my story into shape, I have forgotten all about it!

But now I am COMING to your house, and I shall tell you everything you want to know. We shall leave tarks together, of THAT I am sure.

It IS true, however, that there are SOME children I cannot talk to. As I told you in the beginning, five long weeks ago, I do NOT get along with boys who are "in" Algebra. They know too much.

I can ONLY get along with children who understand how to Make Believe.

And isn't Making Believe the most WONDERFUL thing in the world? It is true happiness! And everybody who is TRULY happy is now and then "making believe." Is it a rainy day? O, dreadful! But, sweethearts, "make believe" the sun is shining." Is somebody cross? "Make believe" they are not cross. Greet them with a smiling willingness to serve. Watch the clouds of "crossness" disappear. Soon, everybody is happy!

"Good bye, now," he said, "for I am awfully busy these days, with my toy factories running night AND day, and give my love to every little boy and girl in New England and Canada!"

He was off, and I sat alone.

I sit alone now, with my Great Problem.

How am I to get to Boston today, in time to go out tomorrow with the Sunday AMERICAN.

How, indeed?

I glance around the library of the House Under the Hill, for perhaps the last time. And my eyes rest upon——

Of all things in the world, my Wishing Cap!

I have picked it up.

I am examining it.

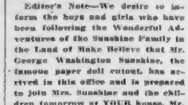
I have one wish left.



And I wish—I wish—I wish—I wish I were in Boston, this very minute!

THE END.

Editor's Note—We desire to inform the boys and girls who have been following the Wonderful Adventures of the Sunshine Family in the Land of Make Believe that Mr. George Washington Sunshine, the famous paper doll cutout, has arrived in this office and is prepared to join Mrs. Sunshine and the children tomorrow at YOUR house. Mr. Sunshine will go out with the Sunday AMERICAN. This is positive. He strikes us as a somewhat mysterious little gentleman (though polite and very well dressed), for when we asked him how he got here he made the amazing reply "Why, I wished myself here, and, whish! quicker'n scat, I WAS here!"

What Happened to Jane

As a Bride She Has a Sad Home-Coming

Jane puts a few finishing touches to her hair

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXXI.

Copyright, 1915, Star Company

THE night of Jane's arrival in her husband's home was one of the dreary occasions of her life.

She had fortified her fainting spirit with the hope that in Augustus Reeves' house was a woman who having been young herself and having known sorrow of one sort or another, would have at least a feeling of interest in the girl who was to live with her.

Even if Mary Baird had been uncommunicative and stiff on the occasion of Jane's visit with her mother to the Reeves home, the girl persuaded herself that this stiffness was the result of embarrassment. Mary was perhaps naturally different. She, Jane would have no trouble in winning her over. Jane had never had any trouble in making people like her.

So tonight, as the depot wagon driven by Dan turned in at the farmgate, the young wife looked out eagerly for the lights that she was certain would be shining to welcome her. But instead all the main part of the big house was dark. Only from the kitchen a light glimmered.

"What's the matter with Mary?" Augustus complained, clambering down from the wagon. "Get out, Jane, and be careful that you don't fall. It's slippery, you know. I'll go on in and see what's the matter and make a light for you."

The front door was locked and he knocked loudly. A moment later was the sound of bolts being drawn and the door swung open, revealing Mary Baird standing there with a candle in her hand.

"Why have you got everything dark like this?" Reeves asked gruffly. "What kind of a way is this to have the house when we're coming home."

"I was in the kitchen," the woman replied in a sullen voice. "Here's the lamp on the table where it always is. There are the matches by it."

By the time that Jane had climbed, unassisted, from the wagon, Augustus had lighted the lamp.

JANE GREETS HER HUSBAND'S HOUSEKEEPER

"Put the bags down here, Dan," he said. "Don't step on the carpet, with your dirty boots. Come in, Jane! I expect you're most frozen."

Mary Baird, after standing for a moment, had retired back in the dimness of the kitchen as Jane entered the hall.

"Good evening, Mrs. Baird!" the girl called.

She was determined to make friends with this, the only companion of her own sex in the house.

Mary hesitated, glanced around and nodded. "Good-evening!" she muttered, then added, "Supper's about ready."

"That's nice," the girl said. "It's a bitter cold night, and I know your supper will taste good."

But Mary went on into the kitchen without another word.

"May I go up and wash for supper, Augustus?" Jane asked tremulously.

"Sure! Pick up that other bag—I've got two myself—and come on up."

The upper rooms were all dark. They were not cold, as there was a hot-air furnace in the house. Yet there was a closed-up, dank odor to the entire place that depressed the girl. An awful pang of homesickness assailed her, as it had on that day weeks ago when she and her mother had come to this house.

She wanted her mother now as a child wants its mother.

"I guess Mary's got water and everything here," Reves remarked as he deposited the bags at the foot of the bed. "This is our room, though there's a smaller one next to it that I sometimes use. There's a bed in there, too. You can keep your clothes in one room, and I'll keep mine in the other."

He went into the adjoining chamber and lighted the lamp. Jane followed him.

"This is a nice little room," she said. "I wonder if I might not use it as a dressing room."

"I don't care," the man replied. "Call it a dressing room if you want to. It amounts to the same thing—a room where you keep your clothes."

She removed her hat and coat, and going over to the washstand bathed her face and eyes. The cold water served to check her hysterical inclination to cry.

THE GROOM GETS ON THE GIRL'S NERVES

She heard Augustus go down stairs while she was arranging her hair in front of the mirror. Then, at the only exit from the small room was through the large one, she put out her lamp and went into the room she and her husband were to share. A chill seemed to strike her as she crossed the huge apartment.

"I hate this room! I hate it!" she whispered.

She paused for a moment, battling with the sensation of dread she felt creeping over her. It was foolish, she chided herself—senseless.

She remembered having heard somewhere or from someone that certain houses and rooms take their atmosphere from the moods and characters of the people who live in them and of the events that have happened in them.

It was as if the walls were sentient things that held the memory of the suffering and the tragedies they had witnessed. It was a dreadful idea. The bride told herself, ashamed of her folly.

As she stood still, battling with her own weakness, she recalled vividly a story she had read years ago. It was about a house in which a man had committed suicide, and any sensitive person who tried to sleep in the room in which the poor wretch had died was always seized with a sense of indescribable horror.

She shook her head impatiently. "I am getting to be a silly fool!" she muttered. "I will try to behave myself like a sensible Christian and go down to supper.

And, extinguishing the light, she hurried downstairs.

To Be Continued.

In Our Wonderful World

THE caterpillar, though a sociable creature, tries to keep out of everybody's way. Some species hide on the under surface of leaves, others on the stems or blades of grass, which serve them as food; others, again, build little nests for concealment or lie snugly hidden between the curled edges of leaves, which they draw close together until the opposite edges meet. The caterpillar is a sociable creature in his own family. He knows that there is safety in numbers, and you will find whole companies feeding side by side while keeping a sharp lookout for their bird enemies, but when a caterpillar is by himself he scarcely dares to move for fear of attracting attention. Even when he is obliged to change his skin he doesn't venture to leave his old coat lying around. The reason that he takes it off he eats it. The caterpillars that live in companies shed their skin boldly. Only the poor solitary fellows feel forced to swallow their old clothes.

Iron alloyed with gold has been introduced as a substitute for tin in the making of cans. The resulting product is said to be proof against corrosion of most kinds, but costs fifteen times as much as tinplate.

It is sometimes found inconvenient to carry a flask. This will soon be unnecessary, thanks to a Parisian chemist, who has discovered a process for solidifying liquors, such as brandy, whiskey and other stimulants, and converting them into tablets.

It has been found that temperatures can be indicated by means of certain changes in the melting temperatures between 425 and 3,425 degrees Fahrenheit, and the temperature of a bar of iron in a furnace can be ascertained by placing on it some of the different mixtures of salts and noting which one melts. In the same way a bar of steel may be heated to a required temperature with unerring certainty by placing some of the salt that melts at the required temperature on the bar when it is put into the furnace and heated until the salt fuses.

Children in Japan begin to study jiu-jitsu in their earliest years, for it is a system of physical culture, hygiene and ethics, besides being a form of self-defence and offence. A series of exercises to give strength and flexibility to the limbs is first taught; later the pupil is shown the fine art of using an adversary's strength against himself which is the real principle of jiu-jitsu.

Wire solder is made by punching small holes from one thirty-second to one sixteenth-of an inch in diameter in the bottom of a sheet iron pan along one side, holes to be one-half inch apart. Set the pan upon a flat plate of iron or a flat stone-slab, pour in the solder and tip the pan so that the solder will flow through the holes, drawing the pan along the slab fast enough to leave trains of solder cooling in the form of wires. This will require a few trials to succeed well and make the wire even.

By DR. HARRY J. HAISELDEN

In the seventh chapter, Dr. Haiselden told of what he termed blunders of his youth when he operated to save the life of a defective girl, which was not only a burden to herself, but to her well-to-do relatives. Read more today in the beginning of a new chapter.

CHAPTER VIII.

Copyright, 1915, by Harry J. Haiselden.

I AM trying to explain to you how it was that on one fine bright Winter day, a day when all life and everything living seemed wonderfully beautiful, I condemned to death a little child because it was not as other children are. I explained that it was not a passing fancy, not a burst of hatred for a sick little bit of humanity, not a sudden impulse to take a step into the unknown regions, but I decided to let this little thing go its way without any interference from me. I want to make it very clear that I did so as the result of a vast experience which gave me wisdom to see what I had not seen before—that it is better for those only half alive to die completely.

Do you recall "The Old Man of the Mountains," who in the old frightful tale of the nursery would leap upon the backs of passing men and ride them savagely until they fell dead with horror and exhaustion. That is the way the curse of the defectives rides those who are its victims.

OBLIVION—THEN BURDENS

It rides them savagely and it rides them long. Many times they would like nothing better than to lie down by the roadside and let utter oblivion come to bring them surcease. But the curse rides the heel and spur drives them along the stony road. And Death always at the end of the road—a welcome, but too belated friend.

In later chapters of this book I will let you hear the evidence straight from the mouths of those who are this cursed. You will hear them beg me to give them a little bit of mercy—and Death is the form in which they wish it. You will hear them crying bitter maledictions upon those men who prevented them from dying in their cradles.

But now bear with me a while and I will let my experience tell you why I have done what I have done.

I have already told you of the heedless crimes of my youth when I let my love of surgery drive me recklessly on where older and wiser men hesitated to tread.

Now I shall tell you of my first rebellion—how I incurred the sharpest and bitterest criticism of my career.

It was a boy they brought to me fifteen years ago. He was bullet-headed and his expression was that of the lowest of the beasts. If I ever doubted the Darwinian theory I ceased to do so when I beheld this son of kind and gentle parents. It was a throw-back to the darkest jungle days. And I was told by his horror-stricken relatives that the behavior of this boy on all occasions was as bad as that of the most bestial creatures of the jungle. He looked like an ape and he was an ape.

PERFORM SIMPLE OPERATION

I had gone forward in my theories since the incidents of the last chapter and I was prepared to strike my first blow in defense of my new position.

I performed a simple operation upon that boy that would forever bar him from producing more of his kind in this world. I did so, of course, with the full consent of the parents, who had been rendered desperate by his beast-like actions.

Several years later that boy was taken to the asylum at Elgin. There the boy was examined and my action was discovered. The scientific head of the institution flung the bitterest criticisms at me for what I had done.

And yet what I had really done was to take a sane precaution. My conscience has never given me a single pang for what I did to that ape child.

I should like to know how it is that policemen are given medals of honor when they shoot down a rebelling cur in the streets to prevent it from spreading its rabies among school children, and men of my profession are well-nigh crucified when they see a beast far more dangerous among their fellow men and have the supreme courage to adopt the sole means of robbing it of its danger. Why is this?

THE STORY OF AN INJURED GIRL

There are plenty of sad cases where the taint of imbecility or abnormality is acquired—particularly so in city life where every day children are born looking functions of life—so many of them that it seems to me a great wrong to devote our time and our skill and our energy to the fostering and preserving of those already hopelessly blighted.

A young girl who was struck down by a street car was brought to me after several weeks. She had already been saved from death by the surgeon's skill. It was her mental condition that was troubling those near and dear to her now. The heavy blow upon her head had wrecked her mind. Her whole nature was changed. From a sweet and winsome creature she had been transformed by the shock into a sneering, ugly natured individual, speaking always in a sarcastic, vitriolic way that was slowly breaking the hearts of those who loved her.

A staff of experts decided that it would not be best to operate. It was possible to have her mind, they decided, but such an operation might result fatally. Therefore they would not hazard it. They decided to let her live the rest of her days with a sadly clouded mind—filled with strange and sad and dangerous illusions.

Here was one condemned to live.

Her black moods continued, growing in violence until at last they took a sudden, definite turn. Imagine the horror of that staid, Christian family when the poor creature one day announced that she was the Virgin Mary.

This girl had been a devout and ardent little Christian. She had been an enthusiastic church worker. Her mind—before it was destroyed—had been one of great brilliance. She was young, beautiful and altogether charming.

In the new fancy that seized her she suddenly became dangerous to the community. She was tormented by the absurd impression that she had been betrayed by a minister of the gospel. One day she went to call upon him in his church study. There was a scene.

To Be Continued Monday.

Skinny Is Always In a Bad Strategic Position

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks closed strong after opening on a little higher level. The impression gained ground that the President's message will not disturb business. In fact, now it is expected to be a reassuring document. The New York market was dull in the first hour, but active in the second. There was a sudden demand for many issues and a good deal of short covering. The recent reaction has left the market much stronger technically, while trading may be tame during the rest of the month, underlying sentiment is so bullish than another upward movement is looked for by many people early in the new year at the latest. Railroads have not responded much as yet to recent reports as to earnings. For October the net of the New York Central system increased about 60 per cent., while the gain of the Pennsylvania amounted to around 54 per cent. Mis-October, after taxes, increased $785,-363.

GOODO GAINS BY SOME.

Among the largest gains in New York at the close were Allis-Chalmers 1⅝, Lackawanna Steel 1¼, Car & Foundry 2½, American Locomotive 1¼, Baldwin 2⅜, Colorado Fuel 1¼, Crucible 1¼, General Electric 1⅝, Goodrich 1⅛, Studebaker 1⅛, Republic Steel 2⅝, Utah Copper 1⅜, Inspiration 1, Tennessee ¾, Atchison ¾ and St. Paul 1½. General Motors advanced 22½ to the highest record price of 492½. Anaconda was up ⅜ at 86⅝, after selling as high as 87⅝. U. S. Steel was up ¼.

Declines were few and mostly fractional, although Bethlehem closed 5 lower at 470. Other losses were Union Pacific ⅜, Texas Oil ½ and Rock Island ¾. The majority of rails were fractionally higher.

UNITED FRUIT WAS WEAK.

United Fruit was active and weak in Boston, getting the most attention in early trading. It opened at a decline of six points, selling at 145, and after rallying closed where it began. It was extensively dealt in in New York. Alaska Gold closed ⅜ lower. It was the most active issue in this market this week. Up to Friday's closing 42,279 shares changed hands in Boston, and 81,800 in New York. The second stock in point of local activity was Shattuck-Arizona, and the third was American Zinc with a gain of ½.

Among other gains were St. Mary 2, Copper Range ⅜, Mohawk ½, Trinity 1¼, Kentura Oil ⅜, Butte & Superior ⅝, Pond Creek ⅜ and Island Creek ¾. Butte and Superior's output for November broke all its monthly production records.

Metal market conditions remain the same, according to reports. Demand for copper, spelter and lead is quiet at present. In New York prime Western spot spelter was quoted at 16⅝a17c.

NEW YORK BANK STATEMENT.

According to the statement as to the actual condition of New York Clearing House members, their surplus reserve decreased $4,167,310 during the week to a total of $179,310,-030. Loans increased $4,634,000, net demand deposits decreased $1,268,000, and time deposits decreased $593,000. The average condition report shows surplus reserve increased $514,160 to a total of $180,440,470; loans decreased $5,378,000, demand deposits decreased $4,066,000, time deposits decreased $538,000.

No change of consequence occurred in the money market during the week, funds being plenty and demand no greater.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The best way to find just the position you want is to advertise in the Boston American's "Situations Wanted" Columns.

The American will gladly publish your "ad" absolutely FREE for a whole week if you do not get the situation you want after advertising seven times.

The cost of advertising under "Situations Wanted" is only five cents a line for one and twenty-five cents a line for seven insertions. Seven words count a line.

Your two-line "ad" will cost but fifty cents for an entire week and the American prints it another seven times if you are unsuccessful.

"Situations Wanted" Advertising should be left at the conveniently located Branch Office at 264 Washington street or the Main Office at 80 Summer street.

American Want Ads give big results.

Pianos & Musical Instruments

CHAS. S. NORRIS

181 Tremont Street

The Autopiano

THE Autopiano unites in a single instrument a high-class upright, which can be played with the hands (the old way), and the player-piano, which is played with the perforated music roll (the new way), thus enabling any one, young or old, to render in a finished manner any musical composition. The construction of the Autopiano is most durable, and, unlike others, who use rubber tubes in construction—in the Autopiano lead tubes are used and are indestructible. Its sweet tone is unequalled. NORRIS.

PIANO BARGAINS THIS WEEK

WE have a number of pianos taken in exchange for the Autopiano, which must be disposed of at once. They have been carefully overhauled in our own workrooms and are in the pink of condition. Terms so reasonable that you cannot afford to miss this opportunity to buy a splendid piano. See us before you purchase. CHAS. S. NORRIS, 181 Tremont st.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Rosebery's Opposition to American Preparedness

ADDRESSING an audience at the University of London, Lord Rosebery had this to say about the proposed strengthening of our navy:

"I know nothing more disheartening than the announcement recently made that the United States—the one great country left in the world free from the hideous, bloody burden of war—is about to embark on the building of a huge armada destined to be equal or second to our own. It means that the burden will continue on the other nations, and be increased exactly in proportion to the fleet of the United States. I confess that it is a disheartening prospect that the United States, so remote from the European conflict, should voluntarily in these days take up the burden which after this war will be found to have broken, or almost broken, our backs."

These words are thoroughly characteristic of the common line of English thought—and the line of thought of some Americans, too, we are sorry to say, who are more European than American in their way of thinking.

The assumption of Lord Rosebery is that England is rightfully the dominant power on the sea; that she must remain the dominant power on the sea, and that any action by the United States which makes it more costly for England to remain the dominant sea-power will lay a deplorable burden upon civilization.

It is all very simple. England is the rightful and natural nation to exercise sovereignty over the seas. If other powers will refrain from building battleships England can maintain her rightful sea dominion with fewer battleships of her own. Thus the cost of navies would be cut down and everybody be happier and better off. Yes, it is very simple.

Of course, Lord Rosebery did not mean to be insulting or even rude. But his assumption of rightful English sovereignty of the seas is both rude and insulting to this country. Because we have never conceded for one moment, prior to this humiliating year, that any nation had rightful dominion of the seas.

Why should we?

This nation is richer than England. This nation has a larger and, in the mass, much more intelligent and efficient population than the British Isles. Our coasts front two oceans for thousands of miles. The seas are the highways of our commerce.

We have every reason to maintain the largest navy in the world, and we have the means to maintain the largest navy in the world.

We ought to go to work to build just that very navy.

The reasonable reply to Lord Rosebery, of course, is that if it is too much of a burden for England to maintain a navy twice as large as our navy, if we persist in enlarging our navy, England can easily rid itself of the burden by stopping the policy of building two ships to our one.

The fact is that England herself compels all thinking Americans to demand an increase of our naval strength, for she not only disregards our neutral rights on the seas every day now, but even shows her displeasure at proposals to put our country in a position of defence against future possible attack.

It ought to recur to Lord Rosebery that Americans are not Britons, and that any American fit to call himself by that name naturally puts his own country and the rights of his own country and the future safety of his own country far above those of any other nation—whether that nation be England or any other.

What May Happen When the War Is Over

MAYBE the economic changes attendant upon the European war will have more far-reaching effect than the political and military movements.

All at once Europe has been socialized. The doctrine of Marx has been extended over each of the fighting countries. The tools of production have been taken over by the collective nation. Every man and woman is a worker for the State, and capital has practically been as completely commandeered as have tools and labor.

It is not at all improbable that after having seen these methods successfully applied to the industry of war the peoples of Europe may take it into their heads to apply them to the industries of peace.

It is idle to prophesy. But it is very likely that from this world-shaking conflict of the dynastic and ruling classes Europe may suddenly emerge without dynastic and ruling classes, with only socialized masses.

These are days to live in—wonderful and fearful days to live in.

Once-Overs

Too many men try to cut the expenses of the home and never think of reducing their personal outlay.

Men grumble at the size of the grocery bill for the week when they have spent as much, and perhaps more, in satisfying their own desires for comfort or in making good fellows of themselves.

It seems to be the nature of men in general to make the cut in their own expenses the last thing to be thought of. It should be first.

A man will lose ten dollars in a poker game and on the way home resolve that he will never play again; but if his wife should ask for that sum for a new hat he would grumble and many times fly into a rage over the extravagance of his helpmeet.

GOOD ENOUGH FOR THE JAP AND JOHN

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

Preparedness!

Sing a song o' Congress,
A barrel full o' pork;
Half a million dollars
For dredging Catfish Fork.
Seven hundred thousand
Needed right away
To build a U. S. custom house
At Tenafly, N. J.
We can get a battleship
If we can launch it in
One of the three babbling brooks
That flow through Nelson, Minn.
If we want a navy yard
Careful we must be
To specify that it be built
In Knoxville, Tennessee.
All the prairie Congressmen
Know that they are right,
And when pork is to be had
They're prepared to fight!

Pretty Mean!

The trouble with killing one's first guide is that the unfeeling authorities refuse to let one ship him back home and mount him as a trophy of the chase.

Of Course

The New York Evening Post says the supply of fiction will be greater after the war is over. Certainly. There will be no censors to interfere with it.

Business Is Business

Why should Mr. Bryan talk for peace in Europe where money is scarce, when he can talk for it here, where money is plentiful?

Something Else Again

This year the Congress will have a President on its hands.

The Ordeal

THE pie is on the pantry shelf, where it was laid last night;
It bears no dents where certain teeth have nipped a furtive bite.
The cat sleeps on the sofa with a calm, untroubled brow,
She has no fear that any one will dock her whiskers now.
And in the kitchen there are heaps and heaps of kindling wood—
It's getting on toward Christmas time, and Tommy's being good.

AT half-past eight he shuts his book and yawns and shakes his head
And says, "Good night to everyone; it's time to go to bed."
And just about the time that dad is starting out for town
You hear him trotting down the stairs to shake the furnace down.
And yesterday his teacher said, "Your boy has changed, somehow;
He's taking such an interest in the work he's doing now."

HE folds his napkin every day; his clothes are clean and neat,
He never kicks tin cans along when he goes down the street.
He still is running with his gang; but up to Friday night
For almost fifteen days on end he hadn't had a fight.
Still, we'll be glad when Christmas comes; for it is all too plain
That Tommy boy is staggering beneath a fearful strain.

Do Your Own Guessing

Thus far every candidate for the Presidency named by Nebraska has refused the honor, but if the State keeps on trying we are reasonably sure she will find a candidate—and right near home, too.

Hardly

Just because Waterloo was won on the Rugby or Eton football field doesn't prove that any victories in the present war can be won at any of the London bridge tables.

Oh! He Hasn't, Hasn't He?

Commenting on Henry Cabot Lodge's prediction that the Republicans will carry Massachusetts by 75,000 or 100,000, the New York World says: "He hasn't the slightest idea who the candidate will be. Isn't it just possible that Henry Cabot Lodge thinks perhaps the candidate will be Henry Cabot Lodge?"

Embarrassing Position

Nowadays a weather forecaster does not care to prophesy high winds for fear the administration will think he is doing press agent work for William Jennings Bryan.

Cold Business

When the president of a life insurance company earnestly urges this country to arm immediately it is time for the rest of us to wake up.

Some Things Are Hard to Explain

We are at a loss to understand why the Standard Oil Company objects to the tax on gasoline. The consumers have to pay it.

Don't Be Alarmed

Cruiser Off to Mexico to Protect Americans—Calm yourself. It is only from the Yaqui Indians that the Americans are to be protected.

Now Let the Campaign Start

Anticipating the inevitable we hereby place Charles Warren Fairbanks in nomination for the Presidency on the Republican ticket.

Just a Timely Tip

Sustained by the Supreme Court!

Highest of All Tribunals, in the State Where They Have to Be Shown, Finds That the Best of ALL Newspapers Is the SUNDAY Newspaper. No Court, However, Can Furnish You with a Sunday AMERICAN When, As Has Lately Happened So Often, the Dealer Is "All Sold Out."

The Supreme Court of the great State of Missouri, in a decision handed down a day or two ago, finds the Sunday newspaper to be a "public necessity."

The opinion is written by Chief Justice Woodson. Says the learned justice, in a decision which will be the subject of editorial comment from one end of the country to the other:

> The great service the press is rendering humanity is performed on Sunday as well as upon Monday or upon any other day of the week, and its beneficence is more potent on the former than on the latter, for the simple reason that people have more time to read the papers on Sunday and, therefore, acquire greater knowledge and information from them on that day than upon any other day of the week.

In plain English, then, the SUNDAY newspaper is the most valuable and most necessary of all newspapers.

Missouri, apparently, has had to go to court to learn officially what New England has known for many years.

The Sunday AMERICAN is New England's greatest Sunday newspaper.

The circulation of the Sunday AMERICAN is larger than the circulation of any other newspaper printed in New England. More New Englanders read the Sunday AMERICAN than read any other Sunday newspaper. The circulation of the Sunday AMERICAN is growing Sunday after Sunday.

The Sunday newspaper a necessity?

May it please the courts, in Missouri and elsewhere, the Sunday newspaper is indispensible!

In Boston, for example, we are in the midst of an "off year" campaign for control of the City Council, a body which directs the expenditure of $25,000,000 of the public funds.

Would Boston be willing to wait until Monday for news of tonight's developments in the fight for control of the City Council?

Take, again, the sailing of Mr. Henry Ford and his friends for Europe, to get the boys out of the trenches for Christmas.

In the SUNDAY newspapers we shall see photographs of the good ship Oscar II. as she leaves the land of the free on a journey which, lightly as the paragraphers discuss it today, is fraught with the gravest possibilities.

As to Mr. Ford, and his enterprise, there will be Sunday morning news aplenty. Would we care to wait until MONDAY morning for it?

Tomorrow's edition of the Sunday AMERICAN will be a "Sunshine" number, in that it marks the arrival of Mr. George Washington Sunshine, most famous doll cut-out in all the world.

George Washington Sunshine comes to visit the children of the Sunday AMERICAN family. Mrs. Sunshine, Martha Sunshine, Peter Sunshine and Baby Bob Sunshine have preceded him. "Papa" Sunshine—George Washington, that is—has been writing in the daily AMERICAN of his strange adventures in the Land of Make-Believe. He reached this office today, prepared to go out tomorrow with each and every copy of the Sunday AMERICAN. He tells us he will have something wonderful, something marvelous, to say tomorrow to the children of New England. "But," he says, "it's a secret," he says, and "sh! not a word," he says, "until tomorrow!"

Every purchaser of tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN will further be entitled to ONE copy of the Sunday AMERICAN Monthly Magazine, which makes its appearance REGULARLY on the first Sunday of every month. The Sunday AMERICAN Monthly Magazine is not a pretence, but a real magazine of attractive appearance, containing examples of the best of the current fiction and illustrated by artists of distinction. There is NO EXTRA CHARGE for the magazine, and if any of our readers fail to receive the copy to which he is entitled the Editor will be glad to be informed of the fact and will take steps to see that the failure is not repeated.

Among the Sunday AMERICAN features tomorrow:

Mr. John T. Lambert's interesting report of the annual cry that, on Election Day, New Bedford is to be "sold to the highest bidder." A discerning public begins to be skeptical about this cry. This year, however, the Whaling City is packed full of detectives and everything, and it certainly IS a fact that the municipal auto has been used "something fierce." What's that? Ashley? Running again? What a question!

It IS a long jump, from New Bedford to the trenches, but we MUST call attention to the really extraordinary report which comes to the Sunday AMERICAN from one of the most promising of America's young writers of fiction. We refer to Mr. Gouverneur Morris, who, serving France, has actually been under fire, and, knowing how to write, has woven together one of the most dramatic tales that have been written this year "somewhere in France."

The latest expose of a New Hampshire "industry," baby farming; the problem of the woman in the (Bishop) case in Rhode Island; MANY special articles make the Sunday paper interesting.

A feature constantly growing in excellence, and so in popularity, is the Page for Homemakers.

The man who "tries" a copy of the Sunday AMERICAN, "to see what it is like," becomes a regular reader of New England's greatest Sunday newspaper. THIS explains the constant increase in circulation.

The Sunday newspaper a "necessity"? Certainly. But why so late, Your Honor?
